Our Foolish Meddling
The Little Eclipse
San Francisco's Bridge
Girl or Boy—Choose
—By Arthur Brisbane

THIS COUNTRY ANNOYS Japan with criticism unjustified, concerning matters not our business.

We irritate Russia, refusing to recognize one of the most strongly established governments on earth, presumptuously telling the Russians what kind of government they must not have.

The result may be to force an alliance of Russia and Japan against this and other Western countries, perhaps a concentration of the two on this particular country.

Why not let Japan attend to her business in Asia, and let Russia have what government she chooses? We have the government we chose, and heaven knows it is not perfect.

There is no proof that the Lord made this country to instruct Japan or Russia in moral truth.

We have enough business here undone, and plenty of incompetency. Why not try to attend to them?

Tomorrow thousands will travel to New Hampshire to watch our little moon as it passes between us and the giant sun, shutting out its light. The event is no more important than a child passing between you and the lamp by which you are reading.

The sun is 93,000,000 miles away, the moon only 238,000 miles away. Hold a half dollar close to your eye and it will shut out the biggest mountain, place the half dollar on the mountain and you can't see it. If the moon were 50,000,000 miles instead of 238,000 miles away, there would be no eclipse. The moon would not be visible from the earth at a fraction of that distance and could cast no shadow. In fact, the law of gravitation would draw it to the sun, where it would melt and vanish in less than a second.

The eclipse is important only because it proves that men are gradually overcoming ignorant superstitions and fears. Once such an eclipse would have put half the world on its knees, praying that the sun might not be destroyed. Now it only sends people looking for a piece of smoked glass, or a simple book on astronomy.

Knowledge makes everything simple. What was once considered a terrible mystery is merely a small particle of matter passing between us and the sun. Other mysteries of the universe will be simplified some day, as our intelligence and knowledge increase.

Tomorrow will be sold $6,000,000 bonds, first of $35,000,000 to be spent on a magnificent bridge across San Francisco's Golden Gate. The bridge will carry the ocean front highway from the Mexican border all the way to Seattle and beyond.

It will be the most magnificent bridge in the world, 6400 feet long, reaching from side to side of the Golden Gate, through which ships sail in from the Pacific to San Francisco's harbor.

That must be the greatest harbor in the world when the Pacific becomes, as it will become, the world's greatest ocean, in commerce as well as in size.

Scientific important news of today, inaccurate let us hope, announces that the use of lactic acid by the mother will cause a girl baby to appear, whereas bicarbonate of soda will produce a heavy plurality of boys. Dr. Jacob Sanders, of Rotterdam, Holland, tells the International Congress of Genetics that 78 mothers using bicarbonate of soda gave birth to 77 boys.

Farmers will be interested to learn that the use of lactic acid on six cows produced six female calves.

That would help farming, but it would be a misfortune if the sex of human beings could be controlled. The vanity of fathers and the affection of mothers would soon make girls scarce.

Someone, thinking to utter a great protest, scribbled in red upon Grant's tomb in New York these words:

"The good but starve, the order of the day
"Is prey on others or become a prey."

The verses might have been written by Pope, or some writer of his period. Perhaps you can identify them. They suggest lines repeatedly attached in Paris to the Column Vendome:

"If all the blood that you have spilled could be gathered in this place, then would I drink it without lowering thy head."

Other, more offensive, verses have appeared occasionally in Paris concerning the imitation Napoleon III. For instance:

"La France, en un jour de malheur,
"D'un cochon fit un Empereur."

"France, in an unfortunate day, of a swine made an Emperor."

The next two lines, referring to the Empress whose stupidity brought upon France the war of 1870, are not to be printed.

CURLEY GETS DOLE CHEAT REPORT

Silverman Set to Prosecute on Hultman Findings; Welfare Chief Denies Record Theft

A police report branding as "unworthy" nearly half of the welfare cases investigated, and recommending prosecution in more than 14 per cent, will be placed in the hands of Mayor Curley tonight by Police Commissioner Hultman.

Copies of the report will be handed by the mayor to the overseers of the Public Welfare and to Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, head of the city law department.

Prompt and vigorous action in cases justifying prosecution was promised by Silverman, who said:

"If Police Commissioner Hultman and his investigators have found any fraudulent cases, I wish the commissioner would rush them along so that I can analyze his report.

DENY DOLE RECORDS STOLEN

"I wish he would rush them along at once because my staff is all ready and r'arin' to go. We have been waiting patiently and now we are ready for a little action."

Rudy Tells American Hope Divorce Is 'Nice'

By JAMES J. SMITH

Rudy Vallee and Fay Webb have seen each other for the last time.

The crooner, in an exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American, today said he wants a settlement of their marital affairs "with dignity," but if his black-eyed angorous wife of 14 months "wants to throw mud" and "falls into the clutches of unscrupulous persons," there is nothing he can do to stop it.

He didn't say that he no longer had any love for Fay, but he did say, with his teeth clenched and his jaw outthrust, that he hadn't and he still loved her. And from the way he said that, you could draw your own conclusions.

And he said any talk of Fay having a baby is just a myth.

ROMANCE GONE "BOOM"

The Vallee-Webb romance has gone completely "boom," as was revealed exclusively yesterday in the late editions of the Boston Evening American.

Rudy talked about the break-up today as freely as he probably ever will discuss it, for he has a reticense of pride not usually associated with public performers. The Boston Evening American found him with Carl F. Libby, an old college classmate, whom he described as "the only real pal I ever had," at Ledgewood Manor, the Stoughton estate of Libby's father-in-law, John W. Woods.

Rudy arrived there from Bournehurst at 3 o'clock this morning and he slept until nearly noon, when he appeared in an immaculate white suit, glowering a little, and not at all ready immediately to discuss

CLUE TO 2 LOST OSLO FLIERS

London, Aug. 30 (INS)—A possible clue to the fate of Clyde A. Lee and John Bochkon, Vermont aviators lost on an attempted flight to Oslo, was seen today in a belated report from an automobile association patrolman stationed near Talbont on the Welsh coast.

He reported to the nearest Royal Air Force station that he heard the roar of an airplane engine well out to sea last Friday evening. The noise of the engine suddenly ceased at 7:20 p. m. (2:20 p. m., E. D. T.).

Lee and Bochkon left Harmon Grace, N. F., for Oslo at 8:06 a. m. (E. D. T., Thursday. If Lee and Bochkon made the speed they intended, they should have been off the British coast at about the time the engine was heard.

Plan for Norman to See Sec'y Mills Admitted

By ROBERT BARRY
Universal Service Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 30—Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, will "see or communicate with" Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, before returning to England.

An official admission of that fact was obtained today.

Thus was ended the pretense, maintained here for several days, that the mysterious visit by the British financial and political leader, traveling under the alias of "Prof. Clarence Skinner" was purely a "holiday" and that it was not expected he would take up any important financial or political questions.

The official admission of the forthcoming exchanges between Secretary Mills and Norman came only after revelation by the Hearst newspapers that the British leader was in this country for something besides his health. Previously, administration leaders insisted vehemently they had no notion of "anything in the wind."

In spite of any inspired statement to the contrary, it is definitely established that the main object of Mr. Norman's visit is to discuss war debts.

Decision to let it be known publicly that Mills and Norman would be in negotiations followed information obtained by the Hearst newspapers, that the Bank of England chief had conferred

ECLIPSE BRINGS STATE HOLIDAY

State House workers may watch the eclipse tomorrow, through the generosity of Gov. Ely.

On instructions from the Governor, Charles P. Howard, chairman of the Commission on Administration and Finance, today notified heads that employes could be dismissed tomorrow at 1 p. m. for the rest of the day, but no lunch hours might be had earlier by those allowed out.

A skeleton force must be kept on in each department.

By order of President Walter C. Baylies, general offices of the Boston Edison Co., throughout Metropolitan Boston will close at 2 p. m. tomorrow, so that employes may reach strategic points in time to view the eclipse. A similar part-time holiday was declared by the company in 1925 for the last event of this kind.

FLIERS FLOCK TO ECLIPSE'S SKY PATH

Clouds May Mar View as Millions Swarm Shadowy Way Across N. E.

The solar system's two-hour free show—a total eclipse of the sun Wednesday afternoon—is about to begin and the giant "midway of the total eclipse" that runs across New England is crowded with scientists and laymen.

The scientific instruments of 43 expeditions were in place and last-minute adjustments have been made.

It was the weatherman that provided the only worry to the astronomers. He had predicted "Wednesday, partly cloudy," for Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—states where the majority of scientific camps were located. For Boston and Massachusetts, a corner of which lies in the path of the total eclipse, the prediction was "fair and warmer" for eclipse day. However, the weather outlook will not be known definitely until tonight. The eclipse will be 99 per cent total in Boston and will begin at 3:23 p. m., daylight time, and will be completely over by 5:36 p. m.

COAST GUARD SHAKEUP LOOMS IN RUM PROBE

CUSTOM AGENTS SEIZE LIQUOR WORTH $80,000

Startling Disclosures Forecast as Investigators Check Up After a Gun Battle

The ousting of three coast guardsmen and demotion of two others is but a forerunner of startling disclosures soon to be made about South Shore and Cape Cod rum seizures.

This revelation came today as customs agents and police—but not coast guardsmen—seized $80,000 worth of liquor at Plymouth after a gun battle in which a rum runner is believed to have been wounded.

With the forecast of a shakeup in the entire coast guard district south of Boston, it was learned that an unique "spy system" was responsible for the charges on which the five have already been punished.

BATTLE RUM RUNNERS

Officials decline to say whether the investigation had anything to do with the absence of today's seizure that came as a result of a tipoff to customs agents.

Fully 1500 cases were loaded on the deck, off the unoccupied estate of Levy Meyer, a Chicago lawyer at Indian Hill, when Agents Young, Sheehan and Hill joined Plymouth police in the gun battle with the runners.

Coast guardsmen knew nothing of the capture until after the runners fled to sea.

Coast guard investigators from Washington, it was learned today, have reported large quantities of seized liquors have disappeared.

SHORTAGES REPORTED

In one report from the city of the "planting" of liquor on an island in Hingham harbor, after which a tip was given the Allerton station. Only part of the quantity placed there was turned in, investigators reported.

Similar shortage reports were rendered on cituate and Minot raids, the latter at the Glades, exclusive club formerly headed by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy.

TERRIFIC STORM PERILS FLORIDA

Advisory 8:30 a. m. Hurricane warning down 8:30 a. m., West Palm Beach to Key West and storm warnings down north of West Palm Beach to Eaugallie. Changes from hurrican to northeast storm warnings south of Key West to Boca Grande and lower at Sunset. Tropical disturbance central about 60 miles south of Fort Myers, Fla., moving west-northwestward. Caution all vessels near center."

Miami, Fla., Aug. 30 (AP)—The tropical storm which blew in from the Bahamas yesterday was coursing across the sparsely inhabited everglades of the southern Florida peninsula early today, leaving behind little damage there, but heavy losses in the Homestead truck farm areas.

Selectman Has Charge Probed

Selectman Leonard Collins of Arlington today ordered his attorneys to investigate a complaint charging arceny filed against him by Michael F. Kelley of Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, but withdrawn by Kelley in East Cambridge court after service. Kelley, accompanied by Sergt Albert Ryan of Arlington, appeared in the office of Clerk William Forbes and announced he had filed the complaint "in error" and wished to extend "sincere apologies" to the selectman.

Alfred P. Sloan, Sr., Dead at Age of 82

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—Alfred P. Sloan, father of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, died last night at his country home at Plandome, L. I. He was 82 years old.

Mr. Sloan is survived by four sons and one daughter. He was not connected with General Motors.

Charleston Navy Yard Chief Dies

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 30 (AP)—Commander William Cook Owen, manager of the Charleston Navy Yard, died last night on a train near Selma, N. C., while en route to a Washington (D. C.) hospital, the navy yard here announced. He was 48 years old.

Commander Owen was formerly stationed at the Charlestown navy yard.

Snow Caps Mountains

Bend, Ore., Aug. 30 (AP)—There are no hot weather problems on the Cascade Mountains these days. The high peaks of the range were whitened by snow yesterday. Bachelor Butte reported two inches.

had been stolen from the files in the city aid offices.

They denied that any records are missing.

It is known, however, that the police on duty at the welfare building, taking data from the records, have run with annoying delays, due to failure of welfare employes to produce all the records requested.

TAYLOR DENIES THEFT

Referring to this feature of the welfare situation, Atty. William H. Taylor, a member of the board of overseers, said:

"There is absolutely no reason to believe any of the original applications by Boston persons for aid, or any other documents in possession of the public welfare department, have been taken away or destroyed.

"We want to furnish evidence, not destroy it. We want to cooperate with the police in their investigation. We have no desire or intent to hamper them.

"Some applications for assistance may, of course, be in different parts of the welfare building, but none has been intentionally mislaid or destroyed to hamper the police in their investigation."

Disclosures made in the past 24 hours and statements of public officials on all sides of the widespread welfare controversy failed to disprove in any particular the Boston Evening American's exclusive announcement of the results of the police investigation of the first 500 cases.

HECHT BRANDS RUMOR

Chairman Hecht of the overseers denounced a statement published in another Boston newspaper that a total of $2,000,000 had gone to dole cheats.

A great deal has been said in the last 48 hours about the percentage of fraud and other irregularities found by the police, but nobody has revealed the real figures.

In accordance with its policy of keeping its readers fully informed of the facts, the Boston Evening American, which first exposed public aid racketeering, herewith publishes the correct percentages of fraudulent and other questionable cases as uncovered by police in their investigation of the first 500 cases:

The exact figures are as follows:

Unworthy cases, including those in which prosecution is justified, 43.8 per cent.

Cases requiring prosecution, 14.2 per cent. (71 cases).

Families getting less than welfare records show, 3.2 per cent.

Aliens getting relief, 37.2 per cent.

Criminal records, 22 per cent.

Worthy cases, 58.2 per cent.

Chairman Hecht issued the following statement in behalf of the welfare overseers:

"We do not believe the police will discover the large number of fraudulent cases the newspapers have been talking about."

WORKING TOGETHER

"The police and welfare departments have been working together on this problem and we hope that upon receipt of the results of the investigation the city and taxpayers may profit.

"Under the law aliens must be aided as well as citizens, for starvation to the alien is just as disastrous as starvation to the citizen.

"We are satisfied that after the police investigation is completed and the report examined it will be disclosed that the overseers of the public welfare and the employes of the department have done a remarkably good job.

"We challenge anyone to prove that the welfare department has not done everything possible of accomplishment to properly distribute welfare relief for the best interests of all concerned."

GIRL GRIEVES AND REJOICES AT FIRE

Miss Margaret Eunson of 83 Farragut rd., South Boston, viewing the cage in which her parrot burned to death when flames swept the district today, routing 60 persons and spreading to four houses.

Miss Eunson, the daughter of Patrolman Albert Eunson of Athens st. station, had cause for rejoicing in the rescue of Peggy, her pet dog. Three alarms were sounded for the fire. (Staff photos.)

WIFE AND RUDY VALLEE PART FOREVER

Crooner Calls Baby Story a Myth and Hopes Fay Is in Good Hands

He didn't say, "Heigh-ho, everybody!"

He said "How the h—ll did you find me here."

And after a while, reluctantly, he talked—only as a gentleman talks who finds he and his lady have reached the parting of the ways.

"I was quoted in the morning papers as saying something about the divorce suit. I don't want to elaborate. I do want to make a correction.

"One paper quoted me as saying I still loved her." (he didn't even say Fay; his jaw was outthrust). "I said nothing of the kind," he went on grimly. "I said nothing about affection.

'LESS SAID THE BETTER'

"I don't want to discuss it in any way. The less said the better. If she wants to throw mud, I suppose there's nothing I can do to stop her.

"She has no grievance against me. She can say nothing against me. But if she is placed in the hands of unscrupulous persons, it will be hard to tell what will happen.

"So, far as I am concerned, the affair will be settled in a dignified manner, without any hue and cry and silly controversy.

"I'll be back in New York Thursday. I don't expect to see her when I get back. It's true I saw her last Thursday and we did talk.

"It was probably the last time."

This was quite a different Vallee. This was nobody crooning "A Little Kiss Each Morning." And he has talked of the shattered illusion of the romance that captured the fancy of the nation's radio fans. He didn't do any languishing or sighing. Insofar as his heart is concerned, he apparently has no regrets.

The cause of the parting he would not discuss. He did say it wasn't true that Fay was to become a mother; he said that last night. Beyond that he wouldn't go.

He told about his engagement at Claremont, N. H., tonight, at Springfield tomorrow night.

"And back in New York Thursday for the radio hour," he said. "Then I'll go to the Steel Pier in Atlantic City for several days.

RECEPTION IN VERMONT

"On Sept. 17, the folks at Island Pond, Vt., which is my birthplace, are planning a reception for me. I have been there for several years. I'll be glad to go back and see the old spots.

"Then my bodyguard, Maine is to renovated and two additional lodges are to be built on the grounds. All of the boys in the band will spend two weeks there."

Or Libby, he said.

"We were classmates at the University of Maine and fraternity brothers. We played in the band and orchestra there. I've been hopping around so much since I left college that I've had no opportunity to develop real friendship.

"I'm quick tempered. Carl is cool and calm. He never had an argument."

"No," Libby said. "But we've had controversies over matters of opinion."

What those controversies were was not disclosed.

Just what is on Fay's mind was the big mystery today as she prepared to leave New York with her father and mother and put Rudy back in circulation again among his adoring fans—giving him, at the same time, something to remember her by.

"There is no other man and there is no other woman," was the word given out by Hyman Bushel, Rudy's attorney. Fay herself said nothing at all.

LAST SUMMER'S PARTING

There is something very sad out on Fay's mind. It's incompatibility, according to Bushel.

"A clash of temperaments," he said. "There is a difference. They can't seem to get along together.

"While neither has started divorce proceedings yet, I cannot answer for Mrs. Vallee's plans" he continued, echoing Rudy's words. "If I can't patch things up—and I am not sanguine of my ability to do it—divorce will follow.

"They haven't been hitting it off well. He is away much of the time."

How long they haven't been hitting it off well is not known but it is recalled that they separated for a time immediately after the Atlantic City honeymoon last June.

"My engagements will keep me in the East," Rudy said at that time. "It's going to be a long winter."

Apparently it was.

He protested and that time that there had been no rift between them.

"Our romance will last forever and ever, and even longer," he said. Not for just an hour. Not for just a day. Not for just a year—yes, for just a year.

Whether it was Rudy's wish not to be accompanied by his bride on his orchestra tours or whether it was Fay's wish not to accompany him never was made clear. But they were separated for long intervals and there was no little kiss each morning, and no little kiss each night.

DOLE PARADERS FINED, JAILED

Parading, after all, costs money.

Anna Bloch, Arnold Waxman and Mark Leiberman, arrested yesterday in front of City Hall during the "dole parade," were fined six each today by Judge Duff for saunte ring and loitering.

Mary Satran, who also gave her address as 664 Shawmut ave., alleged Communist headquarters, was fined $5 for distributing handbills.

The quartet refused to pay the fines, and were ordered to Charles st. jail.

Blue Hills Fine Spot to View Eclipse

Local students of meteorology have been invited by the Weather Bureau officials at Boston to visit the Blue Hill observatory tomorrow afternoon to make eclipse observations.

The Blue Hill observatory, located on the highest point of the rolling elevations to the south of Boston is an ideal location from which to view the sweep of the moon across the path of the sun.

From this elevation the moon's shadow, traveling at a rate of 2000 miles an hour, can be watched for miles in its approach from the north.

264,756 Registered for Vote in Boston

Boston's total number of registered voters today is 264,756, which is several thousand more than were on the voting lists of the identical date in 1928. Figures compiled by the municipal election commission today reveal that 3215 citizens, 1717 men and 1498 women, registered up to 10 o'clock last night.

SOUTH SWINGS SOLID BEHIND ROOSEVELT

Five States Lost by Smith Favor New York Governor, Poll Shows

EXCLUSIVE!

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Aug. 30—The bloc of states of the central South that four years ago deserted the Democratic party and cast their electoral votes for President Hoover are swinging just as strongly in the opposite direction this year.

This is indicated in returns in the nationwide presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Kentucky, more often than otherwise regarded as a doubtful state is showing up in the poll with 62 per cent vote for Roosevelt and 38 for Hoover. A total of 4779 ballots have been tabulated from that state.

West Virginia, likewise generally regarded as doubtful and worth very overwhelmingly Republican in 1928, is showing a 63 per cent Roosevelt to 37 per cent Hoover vote with 2987 ballots tabulated.

Tennessee, which went Republican for president in 1920 and again in 1928, today stands 70 per cent Roosevelt to 30 per cent Hoover with 1762 poll ballots on record.

Virginia, which gave Hoover a 24,000 majority four years ago in defiance of all tradition since reconstruction days is now safely back in the Democratic fold, the poll shows. Roosevelt has 74 per cent and Hoover 26 per cent of the 12707 ballots from that state.

Analysis of Nation-wide Poll By Hearst Newspapers on Presidential Candidates

Washington, Aug. 30 (US)—The following tabulation shows the political party division of voters in the nationwide presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. Those under the Republican headings voted Republican and those under the Democratic headings voted Democratic in 1928. The non-committal columns represent those who failed to designate on their poll ballot cards their stand four years ago.

Princess Elizabeth de Ligne to Wed Cavalry Officer

Washington, Aug. 30—Princess Elizabeth de Ligne, elder daughter of the former Belgian ambassador to Washington, and Princess de Ligne, on Monday, September 19, will become the bride of Count Guillaume de Limburg Stirum.

The announcement came from Paris and was made by the Belgian embassy here.

Princess Elizabeth de Ligne

Stork Hovering Over Home of Richard Dix

His wife is going to have a child.

Persistent rumors that the actor was to become a father were verified by Dix himself.

Mrs. Dix was formerly Winifred Coe of San Francisco. She and Dix were married about a year ago in Yuma, Ariz.

Virginia Lee Corbin Mother of 7-Pound Boy

Hollywood, Aug. 30 (US)—Virginia Lee Corbin, former juvenile film star, now is playing a new role—that of a loving mother.

She gave birth to a seven pound 10-ounce boy at a hospital last week. Universal Service learned exclusively today.

The "bigseed event" was surrounded with great secrecy. Both the mother and child are doing well.

SMITH TO TALK HERE FOR ELY

New York, Aug. 30—Alfred E. Smith is being importuned to address a throng that he will assume an active role in the national campaign, it is learned.

The Roosevelt forces are said to have refrained from asking him to step into an active part, except as Senator Walsh, of that state, who, like Ely, worked for Smith at Chicago.

'MA' INCREASES LEAD TO 1297

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 30 (AP)—Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson, the only woman to serve as governor of Texas had a lead of 1,297 votes over Governor R. S. Sterling on the second tabulation made by the Texas election bureau today in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The tabulation included returns from all of the 254 counties, 224 reporting their count complete. The standing was: Ferguson, 474,330; Sterling, 473,233.

Huge Cotton Mills to Run on Full Time

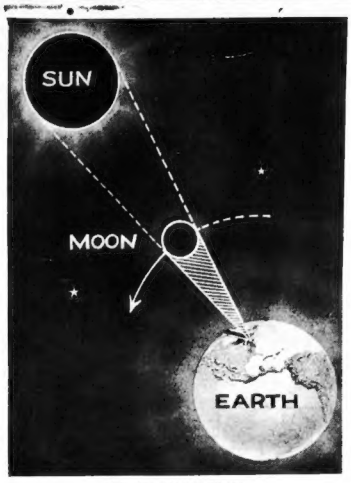

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 30 (AP)—The Standard-Coosa-Thatcher Company, one of the country's largest producers of cotton yarns, will have a normal force of 2800 persons back at work within a month, Thomas H. McKinney, vice-president, said today.

The company started a gradual program of putting men back at work last week as a result of improved conditions.

IN BOSTON—ECLIPSE BEGINS 3:23 P. M.—99 PER CENT TOTALITY 4:33 P. M.—ECLIPSE ENDS 5:36 P. M.—ALL DAYLIGHT TIME.

FOR YOU IN DIAGRAM

The moon's shadow is cone shaped, because the sun is much larger than the moon. As the three bodies move in space, the moon around the earth, the earth and the moon together around the sun, the shadow spot moves rapidly over the earth, as indicated by the arrow in this illustration.

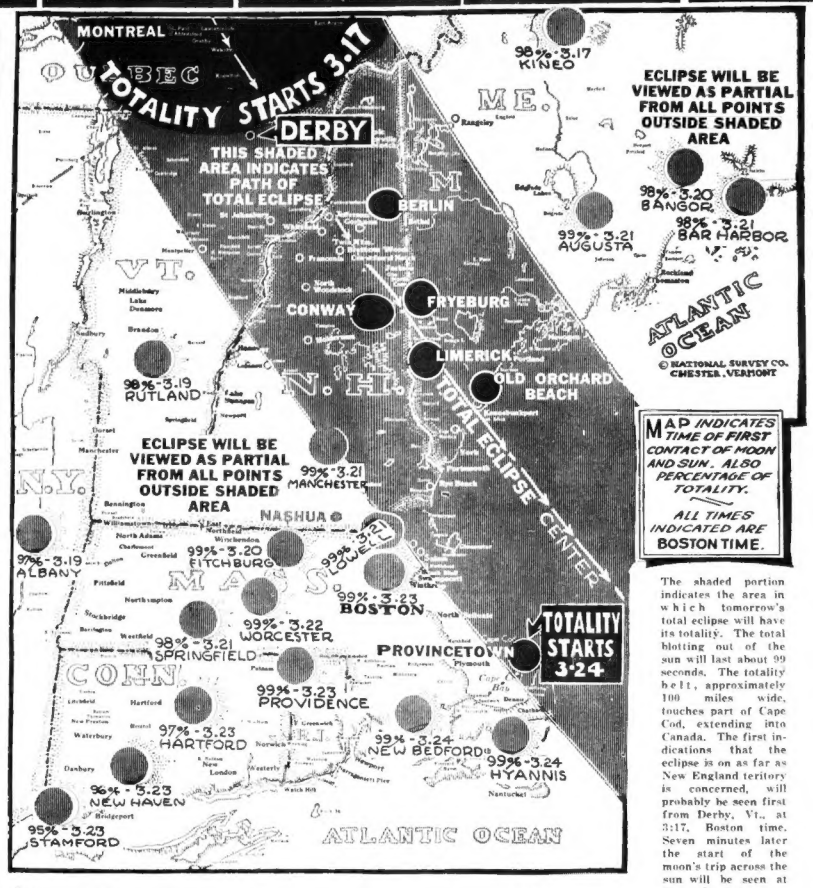

ALL THE WAY FROM MICHIGAN

HAS WAITED WEEKS FOR SUN'S SPECTACLE

Capt. Bernett Harris, who has established his own camp at Fryeburg, Me., with an electro-mechanical driving device, which he uses in connection with his filming of the eclipse. Capt. Harris has been awaiting the eclipse for weeks and has been experimenting with the rising and setting of the sun.

The shaded portion indicates the area in which tomorrow's total eclipse will have its totality. The total blotting out of the sun will last about 99 seconds. The totality belt, approximately 100 miles wide, touches part of Cape Cod, extending into Canada. The first indications that the eclipse is on as far as New England teritory is concerned, will probably be seen first from Derby, Vt., at 3:17, Boston time. Seven minutes later the start of the moon's trip across the sun will be seen at Provincetown.

FOR UNCLE SAM

Comdr. C. H. J. Keppler and his five-inch equatorial telescope, which he will use in his eclipse operations. He is attached to the U. S. Naval Observatory group which is camping at Limerick, Me. A giant 60-foot camera is included in the naval eclipse equipment. (International News Photos.)

A FULLER READY FOR THE ECLIPSE

Alvan T. Fuller, Jr., son of ex-Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, looks through the eyepiece of a 14-inch movie camera. Young Fuller is much interested in the eclipse and astronomy, and is assisting in whatever way possible as one of the crew of the University of Michigan camp at Fryeburg, Me. Young Fuller will be on the job to get his look at the eclipse.

VIEW OF LAST N. E. TOTAL ECLIPSE

This unique photograph of the eclipse was taken at Westerly, R. I., by a Boston Evening American photographer on January 24, 1925. The photographer lay full length on the snow, using a telescopic lense, as he snapped. The ground was covered with an inch of snow. The thermometer registered 4 degrees below zero.

TAX FIGHT WILL SETTLE THIS

An automobile excise tax bill sent to Lieut. Bernard F. Gately, attached to the Chelsea Naval Hospital, is to result in a legal decision as to the exact location of the Naval Hospital.

Lieut. Gately in Suffolk Superior Court today filed a petition seeking to restrain the city of Chelsea from collecting a tax levied on his automobile.

He contends the hospital ground constitutes a naval district and as such is Federal territory and not subject to tax by a city which bounds it.

State Borrows Cash at Less Than 1 P.C.

A record low bid for all time in interest charges, was received by State Treasurer Hurley today on a $2,000,000 issue of short term notes for the Metropolitan District Commission.

It was for .78 per cent and was submitted by the First National Bank of Boston. The previous cheapest rate of interest charged the State was 1.11 per cent. The bid today was for notes dated Sept. 1 and payable Nov. 23, 1932.

Hitler Aide Wins Election as Reichstag President

Berlin, Aug. 30—Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party won its first important office in the national government today by the election of Hermann Wilhelm Goering by a vote of 367 to 214 as president of the new Reichstag.

Goering has been with Hitler since the "beer cellar putsch" of 1923. In the war he was cited for valor as commander of the famous Von Richtofen flying squadron.

In the preliminaries of this opening meeting the Nazis under stern admonition from Hitler himself, sat in silence even while Clara Zetkin, 75-year-old "grandmother of the revolution," demanded as temporary speaker the impeachment of President Von Hindenburg and the whole Von Papen cabinet.

But when Goering's election was announced they burst into tumultuous applause and cheered their leader.

Every one of them rose and stretched out his arm in the Nazi salute while Goering, in a short, crisp speech, promised to act impartially but asserted that he would stand for nothing derogatory to the national honor.

Frau Zetkin was led from the podium by two Hlawsy-Communist women who turned as they passed the Nazi benches and shook their fists.

Earlier in the day Von Hindenburg in Neudeck, East Prussia, announced complete accord with the economic program of Chancellor Von Papen.

About the same time one of Adolf Hitler's Nazi followers was shot and killed and two others were seriously wounded here in a clash with Communists.

Boy, 5, Lost 2 Days, Found Well in Woods

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 30 (AP)—Five-year-old Dominick Tavella of Norwalk, for whom police and Boy Scouts have been combing the woods for two days, was found today about a mile from the spot where he wandered off.

The boy said he had slept under a tree for two nights and had lived on apples and berries.

Supply Dam at Coal Mine Is Dynamited

Scranton, Pa. Aug. 30 (AP)—The supply dam of the Lackawanna Anthracite Mining Company at Carbondale was dynamited last night.

The force of the detonation shattered windows in homes some distance from the dam. Company officials were unable to account for the dynamiting.

SEN. DAVIS HELD IN $1000 BAIL

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania pleaded not guilty today to two indictments charging him with distribution and sale of lottery tickets and with conspiracy. Bail was set at $1000.

A plea of not guilty was also entered by Theodore G. Miller, co-defendant with Davis in the two indictments.

Miller is a publicity man and an executive of the Loyal Order of Moose, of which Davis is the national head.

The indictments refer to alleged lotteries said by federal investigators to have been conducted by the fraternal organization in connection with its benevolent undertakings for disabled members of the organization and dependents of members.

Senator Davis was indicted by the federal grand jury on Aug. 18 with six other men and the Western Union Telegraph Co. All but Davis and Miller pleaded not guilty previously.

Hiker From South Run Down by Auto

Hitch-hiking from Owensburg, Ky., to Lawrence to visit his sister, Joel Early was within a short distance of his goal when an auto knocked him down in Montvale ave., Woburn. He has a cut over the left eye, a sprained ankle and severe bruises.

Edward J. McDonald, Jr., Wade ave., Woburn, driver of the car, according to the police, took the injured youth to Choate Memorial Hospital.

Fannie Hurst Visits Mayor at City Hall

Fannie Hurst, author, who is in Boston for the premiere of the talking picture version of her latest novel, "Back Street," was Mayor Curley's guest at City Hall today. The Mayor gave her several interesting souvenirs, among them a copy of the history of the municipal tercentenary celebration of 1930.

In the guest book she wrote: "Thank you for some stimulating moments with a stimulating Mayor and Stimulating Human Being."

"Blondie" Sets New Box Office Record

Washington, Aug. 30—The management of Loew's Palace Theater announced today that "Blondie of the Follies," starring Marion Davies, established a new box office record at its premier showing here last week.

The new record is $19,500, or $2200 greater than the previous mark set by Greta Garbo in "As You Desire Me."

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

LaGuardia Taking Wet Poll of House

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—Representative LaGuardia of New York has written to all members of the House asking how they would vote at the coming short session of Congress on modification of the Volstead laws and repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. He asks specifically if the members would vote to accomplish these changes if the election indicates the next House will be preponderantly wet.

Sen. Moses Starts on Hoover Stump Tour

Concord, N. H., Aug. 30 (AP)—United States Senator George H. Moses plans to leave tomorrow on a ten day speaking tour through Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey and Maine in behalf of President Hoover's campaign.

He is scheduled to speak in New Bedford, Mass., and Newport, R. I., tomorrow night.

Paraguay Rejects Truce With Bolivia

Asuncion, Paraguay, Aug. 30 (AP)—It was learned today that Paraguay will tell the Washington neutrals its truce in the disputed Chaco will be acceptable unless Bolivia evacuates "three Paraguayan forts—the United States, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico and Uruguay—suggested a 60-day truce to permit arbitration.

Diver Stays an Hour 165 Feet Under Sea

Sydney, New South Wales, Aug. 30 (AP)—A new world's record for deep sea diving was claimed today by a diver demonstrating a new invention. He remained under water more than an hour at a depth of 165 feet and ascended in less than four minutes. He said he was mobile at all depths. The feature of the apparatus is control of air by a double-chambered helmet.

MAYOR WALKER TAKES TO BED IN BREAKDOWN

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—George R. Collins, the mayor's secretary, said today Mayor James J. Walker is ill in bed with nervous exhaustion and had been ordered by his physician to take a complete rest.

Collins said the mayor has made no plans to return to Albany for the resumption Friday afternoon of the hearings before Gov. Roosevelt on the removal charges against him.

"Whether Mayor Walker may ask the governor for a postponement," Collins said, "will depend on his condition."

Collins said the mayor's condition was not serious, but that he had suffered greatly from the strain of the last few weeks and the death early yesterday of his brother, George Walker, in a Saranac Lake sanitorium. The secretary said he thought the mayor would be able to attend his brother's funeral Thursday.

Wrinkles

ARE MADE NOT BORN

Have you ever stopped to consider that you don't get wrinkles, you make them? In spite of this simple fact, women go on year after year making more wrinkles and then trying to get rid of them . . . which is really a lot harder than avoiding them in the beginning.

The source of the wrinkle is something you do or overdo . . . like housework, the perennial champion of all wrinkle makers.

Perhaps you exclaim: "That must be frightfully expensive!" There's where you're wrong. An ALL ELECTRIC home is something you acquire gradually. You add new appliances, one by one, to those you already have . . . And as for the electricity you use to operate your ALL ELECTRIC home, nothing costs less, compared to what it does for you.

WHAT IS AN ALL ELECTRIC HOME?

An ALL ELECTRIC home is one that is adequately wired, and equipped with electric range, water heater, refrigerator, washer, ironer, vacuum cleaner, and such small appliances as the electric toaster, percolator, waffle iron, sandwich toaster, egg cooker, curling iron, hand iron, and heating pad. One by one, you can acquire these appliances. Why not start today to make your home a modern ALL ELECTRIC home?

KNOW YOUR ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR AND DEALER

Your own local electrical dealer is "electrical headquarters" for your neighborhood. He carries a complete stock of standard electrical merchandise and offers you a good variety at standard prices. If he does wiring, his work will be thorough and modern, done by skilled, licensed electricians.

YOUR FURNITURE STORE

Don't overlook the fact that you can buy electric appliances at your furniture store just as you buy tables and chairs and other home equipment—and on the same convenient terms.

The furniture dealer was doubtless the first merchant with whom you came in contact when you were about to "set up housekeeping." Remember, he's ready to serve you again whenever you need a new electric appliance for the home.

Snooping and Telling:

Isobel Stevens of Manhattan will drag her gossamer veil to the altar with Jay "Mickie Mouse" Concannon on Sept. 3. . . . With the boys at Allston's Capitol theater giving Jay one of those goodbye-forever dinners the night before! . . . Phil De Peiro, of the Paramounts, is looking over the beach peaches while vacationing at Hampton Beach, N. H. . . . One Hughie Herderen, of Indianapolis, visiting in town, is about 23 years of age and has cleared $18,000—or better—in the past four years in Marathon contesting! . . . Just by way of letting you know it's not such a bad business to be in—if you're a good sticker! . . . Heads of rival restaurant chains, Frank Sawyer and Charlie Merrissey, arguing over a quarter of a point in handball scorings these sultry days at the "TM" gymnasium! . . . Mrs. Catherine Murphy, of New York's Central Park West visiting girlhood chums and looking for a location to settle down in quaint old Concord, N. H. . . . One eclipse fan will be Police Officer Frank O'Neil, of Joy st. station, who will look through those glasses at North Conway, N. H., where he's killing time trying to be a vacationer! . . . By These Words You Know Them: Cliff O'Rourke: "Don't say it ain't been charming."

We're Still Curious!

Now that we've found out that Officer Pat Conway, of Kenmore Square, has the best coat of tan in that officers' club that frisks on the "T" street sands daily . . . And that officer Dennis Scully has the best physique, we're curious to know which one of the others holds the record for being the best hand-stander and female impersonator! . . . Wonder if Sen. Mike Ward knows how those Deer Islanders appreciated the entertainment he sponsored there last week . . . To Texas Guinan's 81th Lafayette sails for France Sept. 15 where she'll open the Plastilique Club in Paris five days after her boat lands . . . She's taking her gal-gang along and will have ex-King Alphonse as her business partner, since Alphonse is sort of short on pennies right now and living in a modest cottage, twelve miles out of Paris . . . Over there a floor show rarely sports more than four girls and a dance team, we're told . . . Imagine the thrill those Frenchmen have coming when Guinan's blondies tear loose! . . . Such a venture just goes to prove that that's gold in them thar fifty million Frenchmen's pockets! . . . And leave it to Tex to remember same! . . . She plans to eat her Christmas dinner in Cairo, Sayslo—to hear her tell it now!

Duxbury Pickups:

Over the weekend we saw clever Lillian Rubin in a smart green and scarlet sports outfit, popular with the Stronger Sex guests at the Cape Cod Camp and Country Club . . . What a line that girl can give! . . . She's the Jewish interpreter at the State House, you know, and a mighty pretty one, too! . . . Roxbury's Dalfoe Club motored out via his mahogany-and-nickel, canoe, cozy nooks, etc., were cluttered up with the holding-hands'ers! . . . Mattapan's Eddie Green has some barytones that encouraged the romancers along . . . And Harry Speeler was interesting, but certainly not romantic, when he told the tale about feeding bananas to those thousands of turkeys out on Sumner Pingree's "Wing Horse" farm . . . Nothing in the Marx brothers' latest picture crazy-quilt is funnier than bunks at the camp's theater . . . When Attorney Rubin puts on a Sunday night "show" . . . With Lou going from a dramatic solo to low comedy and stage-managing scene shifting and what not . . . Some pandemonium reigning supreme . . .

No Appreciation, at All!

Joe Candullo, the latest sheik-ased orchestra leader to settle for the nonce in the Hub (the nonce being the new Alexandria Roof beginning Thursday night) told us about the two tough mugs who were passing an old cathedral on Fifth ave. in Manhattan recently . . . The cathedral bells were chiming a tune for the half hour and one said to the other "Isn't that something? . . . Those beautiful bells!" . . . With the other hoodlum yelling back, "Can't hear you—those blinkity blank bells are making so damn much noise!"

Needed Paul's Words to Guide Him!

In show business a straight man who feeds the comic his gags, is sometimes the making of his comic partner . . . At any time a shift back, the Whisperers were questioning if Bobby Clark really needed Paul McCullough as his partner, even though Paul has always written Bobby's material . . . One night, in Chicago during a poker game in which Hal Sherman, Bob Clark, Zeppo Marx and Joe Frisco were engaged . . . came a time when if Bobby wanted to stay in the game it would cost him $30 and if he wanted to raise $35 . . . After much pondering on Clark's part, and head scratching etc . . . Joe Frisco leaned across the table and declared, "If you ever needed McCullough you need him now, Bobby"

Atwill Gets a Second Thriller

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles Aug. 30—Curious that an actor of Lionel Atwill's ability should have made his biggest hit on the screen in "Dr. X," a thriller, Lionel's own play, "The Silent Witness," was only fair as a drawing card, but "Dr. X" has been playing to capacity houses. Mr. Atwill's particular performance in "Dr. X" was so good that Warner Brothers telephoned him to come back to play the lead in "Wax Museum," based on Madame Tussaud's famous London wax works.

"Wax Museum" is taken from a play by Charles S. Belden, and is not unlike "Dr. X." In the beginning, Lionel, who is an Englishman, and Michael Curtis, the director, who is a Hungarian, figuratively didn't speak the same language. Their battles were numerous but they finally got together and made such a good picture that Warners are willing to risk putting the two temperaments together again.

Enter into the motion picture scene A. C. Lejeaurt. Maybe that name doesn't mean much in the film industry now but he was quite a personage when I was on the Morning Telegram, particularly from the standpoint of being a successful financier. He has formed a company to be called Remington Pictures with Eddie Silton, of Silton and Rebeca, acting as executive head in the West. Perhaps Mr. Lefcourt still has all the millions he was reputed to have had when I knew him. At any rate, if he hasn't the millions he has enough to finance this company, which will release its own pictures. The first Remington number will be "Manhattan Tower," by Lou Ostrow with Mary Brian and James Hall in the leads.

Sturges Back to Work

When Preston Sturges gets here to join Universal Studios, he will be given an interesting assignment. He will be asked to write an original for Sidney Fox, something on the order of her play, "Strictly Dishonorable," with an innocent character in a background of sophistication. Mr. Sturges married into the big money a few years ago and people wondered if he would continue his career. Last year he wrote "Child of Manhattan," a play which was much talked about, but to which the critics did not give the same enthusiastic praise that was handed his first play, "Strictly Dishonorable." Carl Laemmle, Jr., has great plans to exploit Sidney Fox, and the Sturges story will be the first of her next season's vehicles.

"Tess of the Storm Country" rates the biggest set yet put on the Fox lot, bigger than the "What Price Glory" or "Cock-Eyed World" sets and different from anything yet built in a studio. An entire bayou with lighthouses surrounding was all in readiness when the company started yesterday. Director Sandol, the director, believes that money will be saved by taking the exteriors right at home instead of traveling south with the whole company. Janet Gaynor and Joel McCrea will be surrounded with an exceptional cast. George Meeker, Evelyn Knapp, Dudley Digges, Sarah Padden, Dewitt Jennings and Claude Gillingwater answered the roll call.

BEAUTY DECORATES STAGE AND SCREEN PROGRAMS

Hinda Wassau, featured dancer, in the stage show now at the Old Howard.

Joseph Cawthorn's professional eyes seem to be influenced by the pulchritude of Jeanette MacDonald in "Love Me Tonight," Maurice Chevalier film now at the Uptown and Paramount theaters.

Song Writers Hit on Stage

Pease and Nelson, writers of popular songs, headline the vaudeville bill at the Publix Scollay this week, offering a series of short sketches. Among them are "The Pal That I Loved Most, The Gal That I Loved," "Auf Wiedersehen," "I Apologize" and others. All were well done and received a big hand.

The Nautical Revue features a bevy of girl dancers and a male acrobatic team. There are varied tap routines that are fast and snappy, a fan routine that is beautiful, graceful and skilled, as well as a little girl who is a good blues singer.

Randall and Fox pose as the "Clark Gable" and "Frederic March" of a studio in Hollywood, and in their roles do a lot of folkum comedy and clowning to produce peals of laughter. They are ably assisted by a lady "stooge."

Laurens and LaDare are so skilled at doing comedy bits with various musical instruments that they stop the show. Dorothy and per Yellow Jackets do colorful acrobatic dancing in a revue that completes the bill.

"Back Street" Authoress Visits Boston; May Write N. E. Novel

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Fannie Hurst, master craftsman at painting life with the pen, and dear to film lovers because she writes stories that make great pictures, sees the rosy hues of dawn for the movies, but after-dusk tints for the drama on stage. Miss Hurst came into town, the guest of RKO Keith's, for the showing of "Back Street," based on one of her many best-sellers. Incidentally, it is her first real visit to Boston.

"This time I intend to look about me a bit," she says. "Perhaps I have been too busy to do much visiting."

Busy! This lady is all energy. Coming over on the train she labored over the completed manuscript of her newest novel.

"I wanted to cut it," she explained. "I was 14 months working on this one."

"They say you work harder than most writers."

"I guess I do. I put in seven hours a day every day," she answers. "I write, and rewrite. I have written this one three times, not to mention the many times I have revamped portions of it.

"Writing is hard labor, look at it any way you may. I suppose I am too general in that statement. For I am a made writer—self-made. I had to work hard—wooing success. It came, but there was that ladder I had to climb. And I still work hard to express life as my eyes see it, in and my brain digests it, and puts it into thought.

"Busy? You said it. Miss Hurst is a dynamo. A most amazing personality, too. Brightest woman we ever interviewed. Able to talk on any subject, and always intelligently. Likes always good newspaper copy. Her mind is a brilliant gem, with many sparkling facets. Stage-screen features, we think, in her simplicity of nature. Unassuming . . . can be self-effacing . . . and a gentle soul, wholesome healthy. As she talks one just feels genius is near. Astounding is the range of her knowledge, profound, too. That dynamic one feels purrs most delightfully, but in a million nerve power nevertheless.

Miss Hurst plans to spend a few days here about getting a close-up of Boston and its freedom. Who knows—there's a chapel among us takin' notes—perhaps some day there'll be a New England novel from her pen.

And it will be worth reading—Fannie Hurst writes em that way.

ELEVEN HURT IN FARM CLASH

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 30 (AP)—Law enforcement officials began a new drive on several sectors of the farm war for higher prices today to prevent further violence, following a flareup in which eleven special deputies were injured.

The officers were hurt in a clash with picketing farmers near Cushing, Iowa, last night. A running fight occurred while the deputies were escorting five truck loads of hogs from a farm near Moville, to the Ida County line. The deputies said the strikers attacked them with pipe and sticks.

Determined to break up the picket lines around Des Moines, county authorities moved to enforce with an iron hand their edict that the roads into this capital city of Iowa be kept open.

Thirteen strikers or sympathizers were arrested, and Sheriff Charles F. Keeling said he would swear in 100 special deputies to gain his point.

Meanwhile the Chamber of Commerce at Sioux City asked that State aid come from Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska to put an end to the strike.

No action was taken by the governors. Governor Dan Turner of Iowa indicated he favored leaving the situation in the hands of county officials.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, in a statement, said farmers should "picket the Republican party" instead of the highways about the eastern Nebraska border.

Feather Showers Will Be Missing at Legion Meet

Portland, Ore., Aug. 30 (AP)—There will be no bags of water dumped on spectators, no feather pillows ripped open and emptied from hotel windows above American Legion national convention parades here next month.

At least that is the optimistic promise of the executive committee.

All feather pillows will be removed from hotel rooms on parade days and the hotels' paper laundry bags will be cut so they won't hold water.

CHAPLIN WINS POINT IN FIGHT

Los Angeles, Aug. 30 (AP)—When the hearing of Charles Chaplin's protest of his two sons being allowed to take up film careers is continued Friday, it will be as an amendment to the Chaplins' divorce decree.

A court order has restrained Judge H. P. Wood from continuing the hearing of Chaplin's suit in which the comedian sought to prohibit the employment of the two boys, Charles, Jr., 7, and Sidney, 6, in the films, as proposed by their mother, Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin, divorced wife of the comedian.

Chaplin, however, has received the appellate court's permission to continue his argument on an amendment to the Chaplins' divorce decree, under which the superior court has power to act at any time for the welfare of children. The actor claims film careers for his sons would be injurious to their "spiritual welfare."

The Voice of Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Down Memory Lane!

I was born in Sidney, Australia—never mind what year—who cares? My parents, seeing the "cut-up" propensities of the little Leon, decided upon a surgeon's career for me, yet my earliest academic recollections seem to have me writing songs and dialogue for the entertainment we gave at school rather than studying phys or any other ology.

In the same vein, my earliest home recollections seem to center around the strictness of my father, who insisted that I had to practice on the piano four hours a day. His sleeping quarters were over the music room, and in the mornings when I would be practicing below, should there be any lull or extended intermissions, I would be notified of the fact by poundings on the floor above me, which meant "Go ahead and practice."

LEON ERROL

One day, the mistake of mistakes was made and I joined a show which went on tour. Didn't make much money, but to me it was a grand life. Eventually I returned home from this tour to the worried arms of my mother and received a terrific upbraiding from pere. This tempestuous reprimanding seemed to affect me little for in another month I was in another show and have carried on ever since.

Came the day, when I stopped on the terra of the land of promise and I mean the Land of Promise. For a time I played up and down the Pacific Coast in vaudeville, dramatic stock and comic opera stock. Portland, Oregon, seems to filter through the mist of years that have passed. I was directing a stock company when Fatty Arbuckle, who was singing illustrated songs in a vaudeville house there, came to me and offered to give us his singing job if I would put him in my stock company. The result being Arbuckle became the biggest man I had employed to date. The first part I gave him was a black-faced bit and he wanted to do a lot of falls. The opening night came around and Arbuckle walked into my dressing room with his head shaved. I asked him what the idea was, and he answered that as he couldn't afford to buy a wig so sans hair he could black up all over—which he did. On his first entrance in order to prove to everyone that he was a funny fellow, he slipped down the steps, fell on the stage, his head scraped along the beautiful red carpet—the black came off his head—he ruined the carpet—staggered around, and to make a perfect climax — he fell over the footlights, and on top of the drummer, breaking the bass drum and several props — broke down the drummer's platform and upset two or three other musicians. He was truly a sensation, and to my mind and experience that was the greatest comedy entrance I have ever seen.

Speaking of amusing incidents brings to mind the occasion when playing for the late Flo Ziegfeld in one of his most pretentious Follies, when the late Herb Williams and myself were doing a scene during which W. C. Fields would deliver a box with a little live bear in it. When the box would be opened the little bear would pop up his head and Williams would take a baby milk bottle from his hip pocket, give it to this young member of the big family, and together make their exit. After doing this bit for a little more than a year, they came to Boston. By this time the bear had grown to quite a size. One night, upon opening the box for the bear to come out, Williams realized that he had forgotten the milk bottle. The bear was not to be put off so easily and chased Williams off the stage, through the stage door and on to the street. William, by this time, through the clawing of the bear for the bottle of milk, was without any seat to his pants and the bear kept clawing where the pants used to be; while I had to hold down the stage and ad lib until the bear was pacified and Williams "pantsified." Williams earned the reputation at that time as becoming the frst theatrical "eater off the mantelpiece."

I remember when we first did "Hitchy-Koo," which, by the way, was the first intimate revue done in America. In that cast was Raymond Hitchcock, Irene Bordoni, Grace LaRue, Rock and White, George Moore, Ames and Winthrop and several others, including myself. One night, about curtain time, Bill Rock notified me that Frances White was ill and would not be able to appear. I did not know what to do, considering that Frances had plenty of scenes to do in the show. Dear old Hitchy and myself were sitting in the dressing room, trying to figure how we could juggle the show without the presence of Frances White, when a quiet knock on the door came and in walked a little girl of the show. She said: "Mr. Errol, I know all the scenes and songs that Miss White does, because I have been standing in the entrance every night watching the show." I turned to Hitchy, and said: "We are saved, and what mistakes the little girl makes we can carry her along." "O. K.," says Hitch and we rang up. That night that little girl was a sensation. Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you, the little girl's name was June Walker.

I remember when Marie Dressler, Harry Kelly and myself played "The Stone Age" scene at the Century Theater, the finish of the scene Marie, who had reached the top of the mountain, 45 feet up, stood there while we threw rocks at her. The business arranged that she would fall to her knees and then die on the top of the mountain. Kelly and I would sing each other with bludgeons and collapse on the stage. This all went O. K. opening night with the exception that something went wrong with the curtain and they couldn't close in. Marie got up thinking it was all over again, and skidded on her stomach from the top of that mountain all the way down to the stage, hit Kelly and myself and knocked the wind out of us. At that moment the curtain became workable and closed in. The last piece of business was such a hit that Flo Ziegfeld kept it in, but that long slide for life was enough for Marie. She christened us the Arnica Bros., since we were always bruised and torn from that scene.

In your column you often wonder, Louis, and there is no wonder but with me. I often think what has become of those grand artists who played with me in the dear old Ziegfeld days. I realize that some of them have passed on like the old master himself.

The saddest experience I have known in this day was in attending the services of my big boss Flo Ziegfeld in Los Angeles. On my left Marilyn Miller sobbed as if her little heart would break. On my right stood Walter Catlett, whose eyes matched mine with saltness as the three of us knew and thought without saying that we had lost the greatest pal we ever had.

KILLS TEACHER WITH HATCHET

Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 30 (AP)—Repulsing the advances of a young farm hand, Miss Lila Jones, 33, a school teacher, was hacked to death today by Morris Green, 22, Sheriff V. L. Bowers said.

The sheriff said Green confessed to the crime, several hours after Miss Jones died in a hospital here. She was a teacher in the Richmond, Ind., public schools.

Green told Sheriff Bowers, the officers related, that he found the woman alone at her parents' farm home 15 miles from here when he went there to borrow a tool kit. When the teacher resisted his attentions Green became enraged and struck her four times with a hatchet in the kit, he admitted.

Besides being hacked, Miss Jones' body bore evidence of having been kicked and beaten, Sheriff Bowers said.

Only One Inmate, Almshouse Closed

Portland, Me., Aug. 30—The depression may be filling the almshouses in some sections but in the neighboring town of Cape Elizabeth, the selectmen have closed their institution. For some time there has been only one inmate.

Ferry Stolen, Island Residents Marooned

Summer residents of Paddock's Island, nearly two miles from the Hull shore, were marooned there today when their 32-foot ferry was stolen from its moorings, off Pemberton.

Police and coast guardsmen searched Hull Gut and other sections of the harbor but found no trace of the craft. It carries the number "255-D."

Hopping Hither and Yon on Sport's Map

DON'T GET EXCITED if the windows shake, the dishes rattle and grandma's false teeth shimmy in the hours before and after the bewitching hour of 10 P. M. tonight . . . It'll only be the behemoths bouncing up and down on the canvas in Eddie Mack's White Hope extravaganza at Fenway . . . There are some sweet sockers among the several tons of beef, brawn and bone that will be derricked in and out of the ring and great will be the falls thereof, thereby and therefore . . . Walter Cobb, the Baltimore burly who appears in the main bout, when a hired shock absorber in the Carnera camp, caved in the ribs of the giant spaghetti bender and almost spilled the Carnera-Maloney party in Miami . . . He belted quite a flock of pugs out of the picture and was belted out himself . . . With the big boys swapping biffs a good time should be had by all.

LEANING OVER THE rail at Rockingham fanning with Lou Smith, who owns that track and several others . . . Lou declares he no longer is affiliated with the Dwyer interests and is going it alone . . . Declares that a determined effort will be made to legalize racing in New Hampshire and says Salem County officials, with the county flat broke, are beseeching Governor Winant to get aboard the band wagon and let into circulation some of the money that would accrue if the bangtails were allowed to run at Rockingham . . . New England sports are hungry for racing . . . Failure of the Bay State Solons to pass the racing bills sponsored by the Bayard Tuckerman group was a big blow.

DICK DUNN, THE little man with the big ideas, who severed his connections with the Boston Garden to promote independently, is readying up the Readville track for the Labor Day auto races . . . Dick promises that this time dust and a slippery track will be missing and the dizzy dervish dance of the speed demons will come off without a hitch . . . One familiar face will be missing, Frank Farmer, who held the mile record over the reconstructed Readville course, hurtled to his death on the Woodbridge Speedway last Sunday . . . Incidentally, Farmer was at the wheel of the same car in which Ray Keetch, 1929 Indianapolis winner, rode West . . . Before Keetch and Farmer the car was used by Frank Lockhart, who was killed at Daytona . . . Tee Lin, Farmer's understudy, will ride at Readville, but NOT in the fatal car in which the other three famous drivers drove their last race.

IF YOU'RE SUFFERING from ennui, or looking for pure and unadulterated action, park yourself at the Revere Arena tonight and watch "Scotty" Dawkins, the Southern Hurricane, and Henry Cornsweet of Brown in their wrecking and demolishing exhibition under the personal direction of Entrepreneur Alex MacLean . . . Alex has been giving the fans so many thrills that many of the addicts have become regulars at the weekly beach wrestling shows . . . Looks as if the Yankees would bag Don Brennan, the pitching sensation of the International League . . . Don's latest winning streak of 12 games was broken last Sunday, but he still is far out front in the pitching records.

WITH THE PENNANT races ending on Sunday, September 25, it's dollars to doughnuts that the World Series will start on Wednesday, September 28, and as it is the American League's turn to open that means Yankee Stadium will get the first game . . . Speaking of the World Series, the Yankees have five left-hand hitters in their regular batting order, Combs, Sewall, Ruth, Gehrig and Dickey . . . Outside of Jake May, who has been used only in the relief role, the Cubs haven't a southpaw to fire against that array of portside sluggers . . . What's this, another college football dispatch? Every mail now brings a batch of 'em . . . As far as football is concerned, "it won't be long now."

GEORGE WALKER, DONOR of the Walker Cup, didn't believe in halted matches, and if there is a tie in the big international foursome, which starts here on Thursday, they will have to be played to a finish . . . The last Walker Cup ties were played off at Southampton, L. I., in 1922 . . . C. V. Hooman, the English player, didn't want to play off the tie with Jess Sweetser, but was ordered to do so—and won . . . Tony Lazzeri's return to batting form once again makes one wonder just what was the matter with the Posh 'Em Up Kid last year . . . He wasn't sick, had no troubles that anyone knew of outside of his hitting, yet fell away to .267, many points below his four-year average . . . Now Tony is back with the bells on . . . What happened last year?

THREE FAIR TO middlin' heavyweight matches in the offing . . . Ernie Schaaf vs. Max Baer in Chicago on Wednesday evening and King Levinsky vs. Johnny Risko in Cleveland on the same night . . . On Thursday night Izadoro Gastanaga, knockerout of Charlie Retzlaff, meets Hans Birkie in a return match in New York . . . Birkie will prove tougher than Retzlaff to Gastanaga . . . This Birkie is the same fellow who hung around Boston last winter for weeks without being able to get a match . . . Welcome back, Adolf Heuser . . . You're a Dutchman who can give us fans a run for our money.

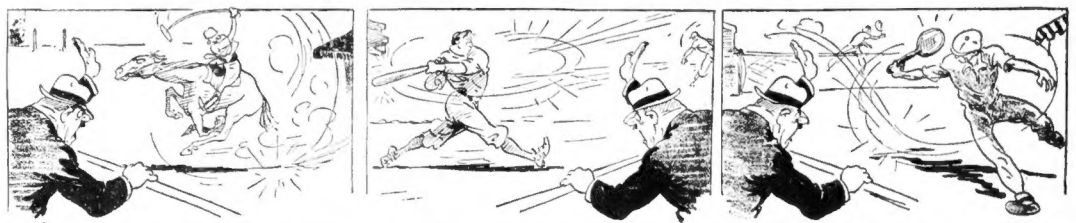

LOU GEHRIG IS used to the Cub park . . . He once broke up a game there with a home run in the ninth inning . . . It was in Lou's schooldays and he was playing for N. Y. H. S. of Commerce against the Chicago scholastic champions . . . Things have a far different aspect in September than they do in May . . . Look at Babe Ruth and Jimmy Foxx, for instance . . . The Babe is back with the spangles on . . . He's only four points behind Jimmy in batting and is coming like a quarter horse . . . Speaking of hitters, maybe our own Dale Alexander isn't smacking the old apple . . . Hold 'em Yale—eh, beg pawdon—we mean, Sic 'Em Dale!

BRAVES TWICE FACE BUCCS IN SMOKY CITY

Pittsburgh, Aug. 20—The Boston Braves will be in danger of forgetting how to play baseball if they remain idle much longer. Their tilt with the Pirates last Saturday was the only one they have staged in a week. They loafed two days before coming here, had to rest Sunday because of the law and were rained out yesterday.

Today they will play a double-header with the Bucs, weather permitting. If it doesn't, they will be unable to complete more than ten of their scheduled eleven contests here, as they make their final local appearance of the season tomorrow afternoon.

Mondays rest didn't prove as costly to the Warriors as did their vacation on Sunday, when they were knocked into sixth place. No other National League clubs played yesterday, so the visitors remain a half game back of fifth, a game from the first division, and four games in the rear of the second-place natives.

With a long home stay, starting Saturday, before them, the McKechnie men are confident they can finish in second place, providing they can take two of the remaining games of the current series from the Corsairs.

Bobby Brown, young right-hander, and Tom Zachary, ancient southpaw, will try to couch up those victories this p. m. Steve Swetonic and Heinie Meine are carded to be the opposing flingers.

JOEY GETS HOT AGAIN

Seems like one night this summer Joey Jacobs got so hot he said a lot of things over the radio he later regretted. But this is different. Here you see Max Schmeling helping Joey into the plane that was to fly them to Maxie's camp at Speculator. And a couple of minutes later the motor caught fire and nearly burned the boys up. As if Joey hasn't burned up enough ever since his Maxie blew the title to Sharkey.

SCHMELING IS DUE FOR BIG SURPRISE

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Aug. 20—(AP)—Max Schmeling, the man who won the heavyweight championship while holding his head and lost it while holding the bag, is to begin training today at Speculator, N. Y., for his fight with Mickey Walker here on September 19.

This will be his first mistake. He should have begun two weeks ago. His second is in going to Speculator at all. There isn't enough heat in the mountains for quick conditioning. He won't know about the thing for some time. He won't know, in fact, until 20 days from when he goes in there to fight 15 rounds with a very rugged, resolute gentleman and finds himself "short."

DIFFERENT WALKER

If there is any chance of a fourth mistake, I'd say it might have to do with the matter of identity. He seems to have Walker mixed up with the man who comes around to collect the insurance.

This perhaps is a natural error, due to the fact that he saw Walker fight Risko in Miami, where the young man was mostly out seeking atmosphere and sassaparilla, and went to the arena that night after having absorbed a great deal of both.

In that condition, Mr. Walker is capable of making two kinds of a fight, tar bad, tbl worse, but I happen to know that he's been down there at Summit, N. J., for three weeks without so much as a glass of orangeade and, when Walker is like that, the danger of gunpowder by comparison becomes stale and insipid.

HASN'T TRAINED

There had been stories from Germany and from aboard ship that Schmeling was training daily for this fight but a check up with his man himself last week revealed them to be largely hearsay and, in fact, hooey.

Golfers, Look Out

St. Paul, Aug. 20 (AP)—Charles Hall of Birmingham, Ala., president of the Professional Golfers Association of America, today ruled that any golfer who sold or bought a qualifying berth in the association's annual tournament should be expelled from membership for life.

President Hall made his ruling after an investigation of rumors that an attempt was made to buy one of the qualifying positions in the Michigan district.

Ouimet Below Par But Joins Mates at Country Club

By BILL GRIMES

After his brief but serious illness which threatened to keep him out of the Walker Cup matches on Thursday and Friday and prevent him from defending his national amateur title two weeks hence, Francis Ouimet climbed back into harness today at The Country Club, playing in a foursome with Jesse Sweetser, Gus Moreland and Billy Howell.

Francis returned the visit his team mates had paid him earlier in the day by going to The Country Club yesterday afternoon with Bill Hero. He is pretty well drawn and despite his denials does not appear to be fully recovered from the effects of his heavy cold and throat infection. As he is absolutely game for put on a bold front but it was quite evident that his display of enthusiasm was to a great extent false front.

Although he was only laid up for four days, Francis was a very sick man. As late as last Saturday it the hope was entertained that he would be able to play in the Walker Cup matches. And he was not allowed to leave his bed until Sunday. Today he is playing a practice round and, if he goes through with his present intentions, he will engage in two 36-hole matches on Thursday and Friday.

TITLE DEFENSE SOON

In less than two weeks Ouimet will be called upon to defend his national amateur championship over the five par course of the Baltimore Country Club.

Francis is no longer a youngster and therefore he is unwise to expect to recover fully in this short time. It will be at least a week or ten days before he can hope to be himself again. Fatigue is almost certain to cause the return of a heavy cold and throat infection. Especially when these ailments were accompanied by a temperature of slightly over 101.

Until this year, the American and British teams never entered into Walker Cup matches with any undue seriousness. The Walker Cup was donated to promote a closer

PICKARD BREAKS PAR IN P. G. A. TOURNEY

Keller (Golf Course, St. Paul, Aug. 20 (AP)—A strong hot west wind ripped over the Keller course today as more than 1000 pros opened the 36-hole qualifying battle for the professional golfers championship.

Jack Hagebeck, veteran Chicago Scot who won the title in 1928, failed to show up at tee time but most of the other outstanding were replaced by alternates.

PARS FIVE HOLES

Hall reeled off straight par on the first five holes. Walter Crowder of Cleveland, who shirk in the thick of the Western open fight from start to finish, needed an eight on the 250-yard first hole.

Henry Pickard a member of the dark horse brigade from Charleston, S. C., weathered the heavy wind to break par by one shot on the outward nine with a 35.

McINTYRE RECOVERS

Neil McIntyre of Indianapolis took an eight on the third hole, but finished with three birdies and three of par for a par 36.

Reggie Myles of Ashland, O., also had par. The other early arrivals at the turn were well above par.

Tom Creavy of Albany, N. Y., the defending champion, did not have to fight for a qualifying berth, but he was out after the Alex Smith memorial medal and joined the skirmish. He opened with two straight pars and was hitting his shots, especially his woods, beautifully.

FERRELL GOES AFTER 21st WIN, AT FENWAY

SPORTS

By BILL CORUM

The Gaudy Days of '28 —a Fight Camp Was Something to Report.

HERR MAX AT SPECULATOR

Max Schmeling, who polled the radio vote in the last heavyweight election, is in Speculator, N. Y., today, training for a fight which may prove tougher than he and his kitchen cabinet anticipate. His opponent will be Mickey Walker, and the surest thing about Mickey is that there is nothing sure about him except his courage.

Walker is to the ring what the horse Plucky Play is to the race track. Selling Platers beat Plucky Play and Plucky Play beats champions. Walker, really a middleweight, holds his own with the best of the heavyweights, and then gets licked by the butcher boy on the corner.

The German will have every advantage over Mickey, save possibly one when they meet in the Queens Bowl some 20 days hence —Mike may out-stomach him.

It so happens that Max has not been asked to show any unusual amount of pluck in any of his fights in this country. He may be the gamest of the game, but we KNOW that the Jerseyman's heart skips no beats when the waves grow high. So if the fight should get to the place where they had to hang their tickers on the ring ropes, I'd have to put mine in with Michael.

As far as he goes, Dr. Kearns' young man figures to be there everlastingly whanging away at Maxie's middle and maybe Maxie no like. On these grounds, it seems to me, you must give the upholstered middleweight some sort of chance. A rushing, roughing Walker may ask the handsome Herr some questions that the retreating, jabbing Sharkey and Stribling did not ask him.

Of course, I am not sap enough to overlook the possibility of a rushing Walker also getting himself impaled on Max's right hand and that, as Sharkey could testify, is hard on the eyes.

Gay Days in the Adirondacks:

Speculator is the peaceful Adirondack resort where Gene Tunney liked to live and train and Schmeling could ask nothing better than to come out of there as well prepared as Tunney was for his farewell-to-glory fight with Tom Heeney. That particular Tunney was the best trained and best equipped fighting man I have ever seen. He just had reached that peak that comes once—and only once—to any man in any profession.

Those were great days in the fight racket, those days with Tunney at Speculator. Pugilism had just been taken up in a glittering way by what Tex Rickard delighted to describe as "the best people," and there were times when millionaires were so thick underfoot that you had to fight your way through them to buy a picture postcard at the drug store.

It was nothing in those days to see the president of 26 ten-million-dollar corporations and a member of the boards of directors of 16 more galloping across the big road with a bucket and sponge to minister to the needs of some ex-truck driver in a pair of unwashed woolen drawers, who had nick-named himself a prize-fighter.

You would be waiting around the lobby of Will Osborne's tavern to use the only telephone and you could not help but hear the gentleman in the turtle-neck sweater in the booth bellowing: "Tell Magruder to buy me three thousand steel at the opening." And the gentleman wouldn't have the receiver hook down, either. That is, in most cases he wouldn't have.

They came, these well known men, with their friends and lady friends to the daily workouts in sleek black limousines, on special trains and by flying machines. There was that late afternoon when Bernard Gimbel, one of the few who really knew what it was all about, and my friend, Sam Pryor, and Charles V. Bob (and whatever became of good-time Charley, anyhow?) trying to take off from the ninth green of the golf course and didn't, and missed death by the faintest of whispers.

A Muffed Opportunity:

It would have been great publicity for the fight, but it is doubtful if the principals would have appreciated it. In those days a man would have done most anything to get two front row seats from Rickard, but scarcely that. Tex had ex-Presidents and princes and dukes and duchesses and senators and governors and foreign potentates at his fights, but so far as I knew he never entertained any angels. Probably they couldn't have got better than the thirty-fifth row, anyhow. And as likely as not there were no angels in the stock market in 1928 and a customer had to be the market in a big way to get in the first 10 rows those days.

No doubt the affluence and importance of the customers added something to the glamour that seemed to surround the fighters and the game itself. I don't know. I only know that there are no training camps like that these days. The "war" correspondents came from every quarter of the globe when Dempsey and Tunney and Firpo were the headliners. Now it's difficult to get 'em a hundred miles out of New York, even with Jack Kearns inviting them by engraved invitations.

In short, the depression has told on the fight game, too, as it has on everything else, and if the scientists aren't careful that total eclipse scheduled for Wednesday will turn out to be only a partial eclipse.

The Spook of Speculator:

And I wonder if the ghost of the Tunney of 1928 will sit down some evening at twilight with Schmeling and Jacobs and McCarney on the pleasant shores of Lake Pleasant? If so the conversation may go something like this:

Tunney's Ghost—It occurs to me that the Shavian influence has a great effect on the young man of today.

Joe Jacobs—Yeh, I think a young fellow ought to shave every day, too. It kind of gets him up, don't you know.

Tunney's Ghost—Chesterfield gives me much pleasure under my reading lamp of an evening.

Jacobs—I never smoked 'em myself. Give me a good ol Del Ropa every time. I guess you must have seen my pictures in the paper, haven't you?

Tunney's Ghost—Jim Farley is a mighty nice fellow but he annoys me at times by splitting his infinitives.

McCarney—Who with? Gunboat Smith?

Schmeling—Ha, ha, Gene, that's one on you. That's an automobile headlight.

Tunney's Ghost—Now in the time of Caesar Augustus . . .

McCarney—Don't go there. I was at Gus' last night and the beer is lousy.

Well, you get the idea. Take it, Tommy!

INDIANS' ACE SERVES TO SOX TODAY

By JOE CASHMAN

Wesley Check Ferrell, the big Carolinan who has burned up the American League in more ways than one during the four years he has been the ace of the Cleveland pitchers, will go seeking his 21st victory of the campaign in the fourth and final game of the series with our Red Sox at the Fens this afternoon.

If the locker-room whisperings are to be believed, Ferrell is slated to be traded at the close of the current race and today's tilt may mark his final local appearance in an Indian uniform.

There has been much talk of late that Wes would be exchanged for Vernon "Lefty" Gomez of the Yanks. There appears little possibility of that swap, but the story persists all over the circuit that if the temperamental Tarheel isn't in New York next season, he won't be in Cleveland.

The Cleveland management has never signified desire or even its willingness to get rid of Ferrell. Neither has it ever strongly denied that he might be put on the auction block. It does, however, deny that he is at odds with his bosses or his mates, as has been alleged so often.

WES NEEDN'T WORRY

So one guess appears as good as another as to whether or no Wes will hang his hat in a new clubhouse when another spring rolls around.

It is certain, though, that he need not worry about what the Indians do with him. He's sure to be employed in a department proof salary somewhere in the loop.

In his four seasons with the Cleveland club, he has turned in 20 or more victories annually, something no other flinger ever accomplished in his first four big league races.

FERRELL CONFIDENT

Ferrell is a confident, cocky athlete, who knows that he's good and is not too bashful to admit it. That doesn't necessarily mean that he is conceited. Those who know him intimately say that he is as modest as rose bud. Others have different ideas about him.

Whatever his faults, if any, there's no denying that he's a great pitcher, one of the greatest of the present era. Also that he has plenty of courage.

KEEPS ON WINNING

For weeks the report has been spread that he is in wrong with the Indian brass and would be traded, which certainly hasn't added to his peace of mind. Still he has kept right on winning.

The only pitcher in either league who has won more games this season than Wes is Lefty Grove, who tied in his 22nd victory yesterday. Wes is determined to beat out his southpaw rival and the Sox will have to be at their best to stand a chance against him this p. m.

Wesley Ferrell, great flinger of the Cleveland club, is after his 21st win of the season, today, at Fenway Park. Maybe the McManus clan will disappoint Wes. And maybe not.

Eagles Are Ready for Combat

Jackson, N. H., Aug. 30 — Joe McKenney, sending some 34 of his Boston College football warriors through a workout, said today:

"We've got a great looking bunch of boys here. If's the best-conditioned squad I have ever taken over.

"The only thing I'll have to watch out for is getting them down too fine."

The boys will go through two two-hour drills daily for the next week and their defensive and offensive tactics will receive attention.

BIDS FOR SOX SCALP TODAY

Walcott Won Title and Grief With It

By JOE MOONEY

When Joe Walcott climbed into the ring with Welterweight Champion Rube Ferns at Fort Erie, Ontario, the world's title was as good as won.

The crown had rested none too securely on Ferns' flattened brow anyway. In the past six years he had won it, lost it, and won it again in three bouts.

Walcott, who had chopped the champ down in five rounds, had 20 rounds at San Francisco found Ferns nothing to worry about.

SOFTENED FERNS

After four rounds of gamboling roughhouse, Walcott had Ferns softened like a sponge. Shortly after the bell rang for the fifth round, Walcott caught Ferns in a corner and belted him with the famous kidney punch.

Ferns went down in a heap. He sat on the ring floor, completely conscious but unable to move. He could hear his handlers frantically urging him to get up, and he could see Walcott grinning down at him.

But to all intents and purposes, Ferns was nailed to the floor. He heard himself counted out.

And the first thing to come, Walcott's way as world's champion was a heavyweight load of trouble.

JOE LOSES ON FOUL

In 1901, he fought twice with Kid Carter. In the first scrap the fight went 19 rounds when one of Joe's body punches was declared a little south of fair territory and Carter was given the decision on a foul.

The two met again in a return bout in San Francisco. For six rounds Carter took a fine shellacking. Then in the seventh, Walcott went down under a punch which apparently none of those at the ringside saw.

This created a storm of adverse comment about the new champion.

In 1903 Walcott was back in Boston, knocking the current crop of challengers bowlegged.

Charley Hagbey went down for the count in five rounds. Walcott beat Mike Donovan in 10 rounds and five days later held Philadelphia Jack O'Brien to a draw.

Likewise Kid Carter was a Boston opponent of Walcott's. In two 15-round fights the Barbados man won the decision twice. Sic transit gloria Carter.

In 1904, Walcott went to San Francisco for a 20-round fight with The Dixie Kid. The division in that bout, one of the most flagrant of the time, created a near riot.

REFEREE ESCAPED

Walcott was far ahead in points when the 20th round sounded. He was fighting in close with the Kid, and landed a kidney punch. The referee stepped in between the fighters and raised the Dixie Kid's glove.

The ringside mob roared. Walcott went after the referee who immediately vaulted out of the ring and literally took to the woods of San Francisco.

Proof that the fight was off the horizontal long before the Kid and Walcott climbed into the ring was indicated by the arrangements before the battle.

Walcott was guaranteed $2500 if, in the opinion of Naughton, the decision was anything but fair. Naughton emphatically stated that Walcott had the money coming to him. Walcott didn't get a dime.

The handwriting on the wall for Walcott seemed clear enough. The ring was through with Joe, if Joe wasn't through with the ring.

CANTAB NINE OUT TO TRIP TWI LEADER

The league leaders, Allston, and the tail-enders, Cambridge, in the Boston Twilight Circuit, meet tonight at Allston and despite the difference in standings it looks like the most interesting game of the evening for after-supper baseball fans.

Allston has been out down to within striking distance during the past few weeks and must check its slipping tonight or get a few headaches with regard to winning the second half pennant.

ALLSTON IN DANGER

Allston seems to be just a bit over-confident while the three runner-up teams are fighting their hardest either to win or to make the playoffs.

South Boston entertains the Colored Giants at the South Boston Stadium.

And South Boston, although the mathematical chance of getting into the playoffs is mighty slim, still entertains hopes and wants to knock off the Colored Giants.

HYDES, ROSLINDALE LEAD

The Suburban Twilight League and the Boston City League will also make strides down the home stretch tonight with classy games listed.

These leagues seem pretty well tied up with Hyde Shoe leading by a comfortable margin in the Suburban and Roslindale in the City Circuit.

The Suburban League will play through this week and Hyde Shoe must keep winning but it seems a cinch for Roslindale with City League second-half activities coming to a close next Friday.

HOWLEY MAY SEEK PEACE IN MINORS

By RILEY GRANNON

Operative No. 69, who covers Ohio in general and Cincinnati in particular, submits an interesting report today. It gives a new angle to an old story.

It says that our old friend Howling Dan Howley, Weymouth's favorite son, will not be managing the Reds next season. That's old stuff.

It adds, however, that Daniel will not be discharged but will retire. That's new.

If Operative No. 69 is correct and he is one of our most reliable agents, President Weil of the Reds will offer Daniel a contract for 1933 and Daniel will turn it down.

Why?

CINCI FANS HOWL

Well, according to No. 69, the answer is that the rabid Cincinnati customers howl so loud that Howling Dan can't hear himself howl and he wants to spend next season in some quiet nook where folks a mile away will have no trouble hearing his silvery tones.

In other words, Howley has become disgusted with his post, as did so many Cinci managers before him, due to abuse that is heaped on pilots and players when they are not winning for dear old Redland. And he would rather, if necessary, go back to the minors, where the pay is much less, but the raspberries are far less bitter.

The players, of course, must stick around and take it, should Weil so desire, but the report goes on to state that Herman, Lombardi and other of the noble ball tossers would accompany Daniel back to the sticks or wherever else he might go if they could but escape the criticism that is being heaped on them.

DONIE BUSH NEXT

Howley's successor, operative No. 69 intimates, will be none other than his pal of happier days, little Donie Bush, who had cracks at piloting the Senators, Pirates and White Sox and did very well in all three berths, even though he sat back in the bushes today.

Donie is a little guy but his skin is pigeon thick. The bowling of the wolves never bothered him. But then he never experienced the Cincinnati species of the animal. Operative No. 69 connects Pals Howley and Bush quite often in his report. He goes on to say that Bucky Harris is slated to go back to the Senators to succeed Walter Johnson, who succeeded him as pilot at the capital and that Bush may step out of the Detroit box job and into the managerial reign of Ty Cobb.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

BACK FROM the well known vacation tanned up, but convinced that loafing is the hardest job in the world. I have plenty of pay for those dear old millionaires who pass away their time being rolled along the board walk at Atlantic City. I can understand how they snatch a carefree blonde from a Broadway chorus in an effort to get a new kick out of life. They usually do, but in the bank roll.

After taking a peek at the gang in the office, Johnny Buckley called me on the telephone. He is the world's greatest user of the telephone and must be responsible for American Tel. and Tel. stock hopping from 70 to 117 or so.

Mr. Boston

Just wanted to tell us that Adolph Heuser is eating brown bread and beans in Boston again. And that he is ready to knock Maxie Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight champion, for a loop. Adolph recently won the European title when he defeated Martinez of Spain.

After MacLean paraded into the office to tell us that wrestling is going over big at Revere. And that he has "Scotty" Dawkins in with Harry Cornsweet tonight.

LES STOUT, new Garden press agent, telling us that Ad Zachow has lined up a flock of southpaw boxers to put him into condition for his ten-round bout with Lou Brouillard at the Garden on September 9. Les whispered that Zachow's wajlop gives him a chance of winning no matter how tough the opposition may be.

Charley Turner coming through with the information that he has signed Bud Mignault, who recently licked Ring Larson, to meet Al Rodregues of Quincy in a ten-round tussle at Quincy on Friday night.

RAY HELGESEN asking us to step into a car with George Grimm and George Underwood to take a peek at a few golf courses. With Grimm finally getting us in at the L Street bath in South Boston where they haven't got even a tee.

Johnny Donovan, capable superintendent of the baths, returning us over to Dan O'Leary, who used to toss punches for a living. Dan says he does not step socks these days for even though married.

I must confess it was the first time I was visited by Boston's splendid $450,000 bath house, the finest building of its kind in the world.

O'LEARY TOLD me that it doesn't cost a slim dime to take a swim at L St. but that can every bather's towel and soap, which sell for a penny each at the baths. Dan informed me that as many as 18,000 persons have visited L st. on some of the hot days this summer.

The locker rooms, showers and other equipment at L st. are of the best.

What's the solarium, used in the winter months, making me think of Miami Beach, Fla. It was just 108 degrees in the shade. The water was 75 cents for two hours, which is a whole lot cheaper than the per person rate in Florida. I took a missus and a flock of little Bostons to Miami a couple of years ago. It's L st. for me in future.

Then there were the special locker rooms on the second floor for the clergy, regardless of what faith.

A FEW MINUTES chat with William "Hiker" Joy, in charge of the special department for boys. Of course you know Hiker's Cave Tent and Awning Co., Fordham, former Boston College coach and quite a football player when at Tech. Bill mentions a former athletic director at the Akron tire plant and the fellow who first introduced Myer (K. O.) Christner to athletics.

Back to the office where Jim MacDonald was waiting to tell me what a swell fight card Eddie Mack has rolled at Fenway Park tonight. With Walter Cobb, who can clout, carrying the Billy Duffy colors into action against Jack Sizmore of Cambridge in the feature go of 10 heats.

Missing the train to Scituate, Mack's reminded me of the days when I figured home was merely a place to get my mail.

A. L. JUNIOR SERIES ON

NEW ORLEANS, SPRINGFIELD NINES MEET

Special to the Boston Evening American

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 30—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, other baseball notables, and amateur baseball enthusiasts from all over the country attend the opening of the finals of the American Legion's annual junior baseball tourney at the Manchester Athletic Field this afternoon.

WON WESTERN CROWN

The contenders in the "little world's series" are the Springfield, Mass., and New Orleans, La., teams. The Bay State nine won the Eastern title first by defeating Manchester, N. H. in the New England finals and then by conquering Baltimore in the Eastern finals at Gastonia, N. C. last week.

The New Orleans boys won the Western crown at the same time.

Today's game will start at 2 p. m. The second game tomorrow will be a half hour later in starting because of the eclipse. A third game, if necessary, will be held on Thursday.

CITY WELCOMES PLAYERS

The young players were given a royal welcome upon their arrival here in the afternoon. They were escorted from Union Station to City Hall through streets lined with cheering thousands to be greeted by leading State and City officials and in the evening they were guests at a municipal banquet.

Big league baseball, with one or two teams excepted, are riding a prosperity wave, Landis vouchsafed to reporters.

Sporting a cane and a rakish soft fedora, Judge Landis stepped from his train and posed for newspaper photographers with Maurice F. Devine, of Manchester, member of the National Executive Committee, American Legion.

Mrs. Landis said she and her husband would observe the eclipse of the sun tomorrow afternoon while enroute from Manchester to Montreal—if they can "pick up a pair of smoked glasses in a nickel and dime store."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—Carl Takin, of West Roxbury, Mass., a member of the rifle club of Camp Pinnacle, Lyme, N. H., has qualified under the instruction of E. W. Koehler as an expert rifleman in the junior division of the National Rifle Association.

The total number of qualifications this year in all grades of proficiency, from pro-marksmen to distinguished riflemen, is 18,608.

Golf Heartbreakers Near Boston

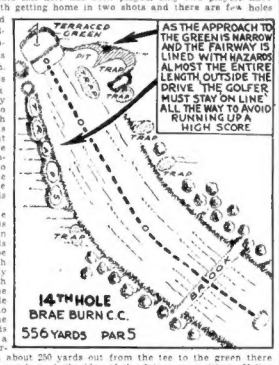

No. 14 at Brae Burn

Out at the Brae Burn Country Club, there is a real par five hole, the 14th, which measures 556 yards.

In all the years this hole has been played, only two players have been credited with getting home in two shots and there are few holes in New England which have yielded to par as infrequently as Brae Burn's 14th.

The difficulties which confront the exceptionally long hitters who try to get on with their second shots at the 14th at Brae Burn, are the narrow opening leading in to the green and the pit trap on the right side of this entrance.

Although the 14th fairway is ideal for wooden shots, the seconds must not only be of unusual length but also perfectly accurate to reach the runway of the green. This hole bears slightly to the left after the drive, which is played down a wide and bunker-less fairway, but about 250 yards out from the tee to the green there are a series of hazards on both sides of the fairway, awaiting off line shots.

AS THE APPROACH TO THE GREEN IS NARROW AND THE FAIRWAY IS LINED WITH HAZARDS ALMOST THE ENTIRE LENGTH OUTSIDE THE DRIVE THE GOLFER MUST STAY ON LINE ALL THE WAY TO AVOID RUNNING UP A HIGH SCORE

To the average golfer, the 14th is three well hit shots, of which only the drive can be off line without serious penalty. The approach is through a narrow gap, calling for an accurate pitch, due to the mounds and pit trap on the right and the series of traps and mounds on the left. As the green is terraced, shots which run over or trickle down towards the 15th tee are usually costly.

All of the leading golfers, amateurs and professionals, have played this difficult hole but rarely have any of them been able to get down in less than par figures and even in championships Ts are common.

OUIMET JOINS TEAMMATES AT COUNTRY CLUB

friendship between amateurs of this country and the British Isles. Aside from the international angle, there is no great importance to either the winning or the losing of a Walker trophy.

For Francis to risk the loss of his national crown for a Walker Cup is not up to the usual Ouimet judgment. Francis feels that because he was finally honored with the captaincy of the American Walker Cup team that everything else is secondary to the international matches.

In the judgment of many of his most staunch followers, Francis will make a serious error if he plays on Thursday and Friday.

During their first day of practise yesterday as a team, the Americans did not bear down very hard being content to study the course. However, George Voigt snapped around a 36-36—72 for a fair ground of 70, while Jesse Sweetser was 71. Voigt and Sweetser played a four ball best ball match against Gus Moreland and Billy Howell and their better ball of 66 gave them a hard victory.

Gus Moreland, the most recent acquisition to the American team, arrived yesterday noon and despite a long hot trip from Chicago, following a week of competition in the Western amateur championship, which he won, was 76.

According to no less an authority than Francis Ouimet, Gus Moreland is the best amateur in the country today.

COBB TO TEST SIGMORE IN FENWAY GO

Jack Conway's New Magic Coin Picks Cobb to Win

JACK CONWAY had a magic coin with him when he returned to town from his vacation. He tossed the coin in an effort to pick the winner of the 10-round bout between Walter Cobb and Jack Sigmore at Fenway Park tonight.

The coin named Cobb to win.

Conway's 1932 record:

By RINGSIDE

How great a fighter is this fellow, Jack Sigmore of Cambridge?

Sigmore has been popping right hands at the opposition in Boston rings all summer. And when his wallop has clicked the party of the second part has listened to the birdies.

Then there was his scrap with Ted Sandwina. The latter isn't a world's champion, but he's gone the distance with some first class men like Ernie Schaaf. Yet Sigmore had him on the canvas three times.

You will get the real low down on Sigmore at Fenway Park tonight when he whirls into action against Walter Cobb of New York in a ten-round tussle. They call Cobb the "Bone Crusher."

It was Cobb who busted a couple of Carnera's ribs before the latter's Miami scramble with Jim Maloney.

The Argonne show will bring together a couple of giants. Sigmore, just past 22 years of age, is six feet four and a half inches tall and weighs 220 pounds. Cobb is 23 years old, weighs 225 pounds and is six feet three inches tall.

In the semi-final, Al Grayson of Charlestown will oppose Danny Regan. The distance will be eight rounds.

Johnny Dixon of Norwood will take on Eddie Callahan of Nashua in a six rounder.

'Erbie and 'Is Playmates

AN ATTACK OF LIMBERJAW

(Copyright, 1932.)

Sandy is still trying to find out how 'Erbie's chances look. He is consulting Alphonse and Gaston. They are good scouts, but their views on politics are slightly mixed. 'Erbie's playmate, Jappy, is highly indignant because Stimmy and the League of Meddlers have criticized Jappy's doings in China and Manchuria. Jappy thinks he ought to do what he pleases and nobody ought to peep. If Jappy should get a severe slap on the wrist it might do him good. You know what happened to General Braddock. He had the French and Indians licked, on paper, only they hadn't heard of it. Poor Braddock. After the battle there was an empty chair at the dinner table. But let's cheer up. There is a nifty future ahead of us. As the Irishman said, "What, no lobsters in Ireland? Why, the sea is red wid 'em." Anyhow, it's a comfort to know that it's—

MILLIONS GATHER FOR ECLIPSE

A great air fleet was converging on Boston today. Planes will include navy "hell-divers," local army and national guard planes, 12 huge bombers from Langley Field, Va., autogyros, and countless commercial planes. Thirty stars have been drafted for above-the-clouds observations in the event of clouds, rain, or haze.

3—Northwestern University scientists are out to gather data to affirm or disprove the Einstein theory. Three planes under their direction will rise 10,000 feet to get a check on the curve of light rays from the stars which will be visible only during the 90-odd seconds of eclipse totality.

4—The United States Naval Observatory at South Limington, Maine, seeks more accurate information about the positions of the sun and moon for use in refinements of keeping earthly time and estimating the size of the Universe.

5—Maine expects more than 2,000,000 visitors will be crowded into the central belt of the totality area. More than 5,000,000 visitors, including scientists, are expected in the 100-mile wide belt through New England.

6—New Englanders will first see the total eclipse at Derby, Vt., at 3:27 P. M. (E. S. T.).

7—Seven minutes will elapse from the time the eclipse becomes total at the Canadian border in Vermont until it is seen at Provincetown, Mass., last New England community to view it.

8—The eclipse will be total over a belt 100 miles wide. The center line of totality runs down from Canada through Derby, Vt., across the White Mountains in New Hampshire, through Fryeburg and Biddeford in Maine, and out across Massachusetts Bay.

9—Along the New England coast line, the 100 mile belt extends from Beverly, Mass., to Wiscasset, Maine.

10—In the area of totality the sun will be blotted out for 100 seconds in Canada and about 80 seconds in New England. From beginning to end the eclipse will last approximately two hours.

11—Outside the area of totality there will be a partial eclipse in every part of the United States. In the East the sun will be reduced to a crescent this enough to change the color of daylight and bring a slight coolness to the air. From Midwest to the Coast the eclipse is only something to be looked at through smoked glasses.

12—To witness the corona one must go to the area where the eclipse will be total.

13—The cost of observation has been estimated at $1,000 a second.

14—There will not be another eclipse visible in New England until 1963.

Everybody Wants to Know What It Means

While each expedition had its own particular purpose in making its study of the spectacle all alike waited the shadow's arrival tomorrow for an answer to the question, "What does an eclipse mean?"

The "meaning" sought was more information about what's going on in the sun, the source of human health and food, and indirectly, the source of all physical life on earth.

Harvard, the University of California, Michigan, Franklin Institute, the Carnegie Institution of Washington, Swarthmore and several other expeditions will study the corona and its invisible rays (also on photographic plates and in all the main colors of the rainbow below.

At the Benson animal farm at Nashua, N. H., a party of Harvard zoologists will study the reactions of jungle folk to the mid-afternoon darkness.

Capt. A. W. Stevens, U. S. A., will attempt to fly at 29,000 feet to take photos of the eclipse and also to get pictures of the moon's shadow down on the earth. He will work with the National Geographic Society's expedition.

2 Will Race Shadow; Others Study Radio Idea

Ross Shippee and Lieut. George R. Johnson, co-operating with the Sproul Observatory of Swarthmore College, will race with the shadow in their plane. They will race southeastward at 135 miles an hour, gaining a few seconds for eclipse photography.

The Perkins Observatory of Ohio Wesleyan and Case School of Applied Science is out to discover the effects on radio transmission to clear up scientific suspicions that more knowledge of the sun will lead to elimination of some troubles of radio listeners.

Vast Drove of Planes to "Get" Eclipse in Air

Scores of planes will take off from Boston tomorrow for the 500 per cent totality area above New Hampshire and Maine, with scientists and photographers aboard to study and photograph the eclipse from thousands of feet in the air.

Twelve Curtiss "hell-divers" from the naval air base at Squantum will take off in the late morning under command of Lieut. Felix L. Baker. In most of the planes will be astronomers and scientists from Northwestern University, but one of the ships will carry an artist who will attempt to paint the eclipse from the air.

Lamenting a quiet season only a few days ago, found themselves at a loss to house even those who had reservations for the night of darkness.

And while scientists and meteorologists discussed the impending event eagerly on every street corner and hotel porch, another interested group was making preparations of a different line.

A battalion of New Hampshire National Guardsmen had taken the situation in hand and was throwing outlying patrols into practically every road within 75 miles.

TRAFFIC TO HALT

The troops will co-operate with civilian authorities in guiding motorists and rendering first aid and, in addition, will see that the various scientific groups are free from molestation during the critical period on Wednesday afternoon.

All movement of automobiles within the town has been forbidden for a 15-minutes period preceding and following totality, except for emergency purposes.

Five army planes under Capt. Joseph A. Wilson will take off from Boston Airport and they will be accompanied by five National Guard ships in charge of Lieut. Col. Louis S. Boutwell.

The 10 planes are scheduled to take part in a week-end air meet at Whitefield, N. H., but during the eclipse they will cruise about 5,000 at high altitude and give their meteorological and astronomical training to the army flying corps a bit of heavenly dessert.

Two autogyros with long lazily-fanning blades along the wings will leave Boston Airport for a study of the eclipse from on high. One, piloted by William T. Campbell, will carry Dr. Felix Delfosse, eminent Belgian astronomer now attached to the Harvard observatory.

Dr. De Ros at an altitude of 15,000 will measure the corona, while Campbell will take photographs.

Will Take Pictures 20,000 Feet in Air

The other autogyro will be piloted by William Harris and will have Hazen Dean aboard to take photographs.

Sydney Bonnick of 170 Maple st., Malden, who was last year with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador, will go up to 20,000 feet to take photographs in a 300-horsepower Cessna monoplane piloted by William Tanner, chief pilot for Curtiss-Wright at the airport.

Ten bombing planes from Langley Field (Army) in Virginia, will stop in at Boston Airport to refuel before continuing to Old Orchard, Me., where a group of scientists and photographers aboard will make a study and will photograph the eclipse.

Virtually every serviceable plane at Boston Airport will be in the air during the eclipse, most of them having been hired for the purpose by scientists or eclipse fans.

Thousands Flock To Eclipse's Mecca

The first contingent of those who want to be in on the ground floor of the eclipse early started from Boston and New York last night on special trains for points in New Hampshire and Maine.

The peak of the northward movement will take place tonight and early tomorrow when trains bearing thousands of persons will leave the North Station here and the Grand Central Station in New York.

Although Boston will be outside the belt of totality during the eclipse, it will receive 99 per cent of the phenomenon's effect. The eclipse will start here at 3:23 p. m. daylight saving time, at 4:23 and will be concluded at 5:36 p. m.

Advice for the safest means of viewing the eclipse was given by officials of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary last night.

First, they advised, everybody should procure a good piece of glass without flaws or waves and sufficiently large enough to cover both eyes. Then smoke it to a dark color over a candle so that an ordinary light bulb can barely be seen through it.

When using glass the observer should hold the smoked side toward the sun. If the eclipse is watched with the bare eye, it was warned, serious injury to the eyes may result.

The Boston and Maine railroad has promised scientific expeditions that train operations in the vicinity of apparatus set up for observations in New Hampshire and Maine will be suspended for 15 minutes prior and 15 minutes after the eclipse, to prevent jarring of the sensitive mechanisms.

Conway Booms as Visitors Gather to View Eclipse

By PAUL Y. COCHRANE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Conway, N. H., Aug. 30 (AP)—As the hour drew near for Wednesday's solar eclipse, this town began to assume the aspect of a boom village.

The 200 and more scientists assembled hereabout from all parts of this country and many foreign nations, as well as the press, were in virtual readiness, but differ ities were accumulating in other directions.

Scores of visitors began to pour in by automobile only to find that restricted accommodations were already taxed and while a few rooms remained available in private homes, even these were of swindling demand rate.

HOTELS CROWDED

The same report came from many communities, and consider fortunate enough to be in the path of totality which the moon's shadow will make from Canada to the sea. Hotels whose proprietors were lamenting a quiet season only a few days ago found themselves at a loss to house even those who had reservations for the night of darkness.

And while scientists and meteorologists discussed the impending event eagerly on every street corner and hotel porch, another interested group was making preparations of a different line.

A battalion of New Hampshire National Guardsmen had taken the situation in hand and was throwing outlying patrols into practically every road within 75 miles.

TRAFFIC TO HALT

The troops will co-operate with civilian authorities in guiding motorists and rendering first aid and, in addition, will see that the various scientific groups are free from molestation during the critical period on Wednesday afternoon.

All movement of automobiles within the town has been forbidden for a 15-minutes period preceding and following totality, except for emergency purposes.

WOMAN SAVANT TELLS MARVEL OF ECLIPSE

This is the first of three articles on the eclipse written specially for International News Service by Miss Annie Jump Cannon, curator of astronomical photography at Harvard Observatory, known as the world's greatest woman astronomer. Last November she was awarded the Henry Draper Medal by the National Academy of Sciences—the first time it had been awarded to a woman.

By ANNIE JUMP CANNON
Copyright, 1932, by International News Service

Headquarters, Harvard Eclipse Expedition, Gray, Me., Aug. 30—It is impossible to forecast a total solar eclipse. As with people, so with eclipses. No two are ever alike. Each has its good and bad features, its favorable and unfavorable characteristics.

Annie Jump Cannon

For tomorrow's great event we may put as the very first of the favorable features, the fact that the eclipse is ours, its flying shadow falls not on a Pacific atoll, not on a barren Australian beach, but on our own home land. The season is propitious also, a time when scientific folks of all nations are free to travel.

There are however, some features about this eclipse which are not so favorable. In the first place there is the short duration of totality—only one minute and a half at best, too brief for all that is to be seen. Why, we ask, have all the long total eclipses of our day, those lasting five or six minutes, chosen to trail across such far-away places as Central Africa, Sumatra, Patagonia or Tin Can Island?

NO TABS ON EINSTEIN

Also unfavorable to tomorrow's program is it that the sun, which is in Leo, will be in a poor star field, where only a small number of bright stars are not near enough to it to make it worth while to try for confirmation of the Einstein deflection of ray. This is more important now that some German astronomers, at the time of the 1929 eclipse have, as it were, out-Einsteined Einstein by showing greater deflections of star light than relativity allows.

On which side shall we list the Einstein theory, as yet unconfirmant and wholly uncertain factor. We know that the eclipse will occur only a few seconds later than after the predicted time, but meteorologists tell us that we have only an even chance for a clear sky.

Astronomers of many lands have come to America to outdo the Incas in their worship of the sun.

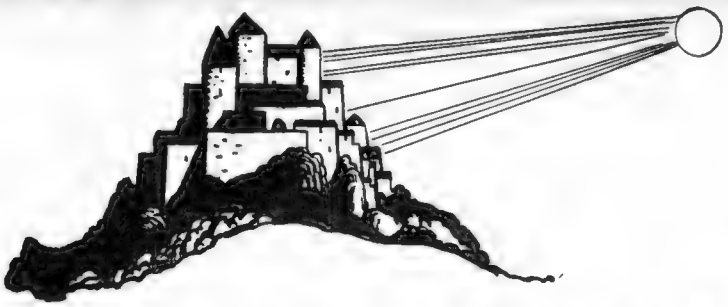

CORONA LIGHT MYSTERY

The flash spectrum and the corona seem to be the prime favorites for investigation tomorrow. Train was made at the eclipse of 1842 to observe the corona without a total eclipse, but it tenaciously remained wholly an eclipse problem until July, 1930, when a young French astronomer, Bertrand Lyot, of the Paris Observatory, succeeded in seeing the green and red coronal rays with a direct vision spectroscope.

He also investigated the polarization of the coronal light. All honor to Prof. Lyot, but the corona is a complex object to observe, to separate from the other gaseous surroundings of the sun that for many years have certainly puzzled intrigue astronomers at totality. Its effect on everybody is almost appalling, and with startling rapidity it flashes forth as it were from nothingness, to form a radiant sight of other worlds than ours.

Does it indeed constitute a new element unknown to us in these earthly habitations, or is it something very familiar to us, like oxygen under conditions which we cannot duplicate?

In tomorrow's story, some of the plans for observing the corona will be given, and suggestions as to the most important sights to look for during the eclipse.

"A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid!"

AFTER three long years of reading that business gropes, that prices go down, that volume shrinks—lift up your eyes to this:

The New York Evening Journal today is bought by more New Yorkers at 3¢ a copy than at any time in all its 35 years of progress!

When the babel croaks that no one has money and millions have no work, turn your ear to this:

Helped by increasing advertising in The Journal, New York savings banks deposits have grown 90 millions in the last year—to a total now more than FOUR TIMES the combined five-year-average annual volume of the city's 22 leading department stores!

When merchants point to de-peopled aisles and complain that the public won't buy even though they slash price, think of this:

Day after day home-goers swarm to buy their Evening Journals at the rate of 3,000 a minute; 180,000 in a single hour—not at a sacrifice bargain price, but at 3¢ a copy, every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and 5¢ on Saturday!

When manufacturers mutter about inability to find a market for their goods, remember this:

The New York market alone has more consumers than all New England plus the entire state of Indiana—does nearly a seventh of all American retail business—and is easily dominated by that one home-going, home-read, family newspaper which alone reaches almost one-third of all the English-reading families in Greater New York—The Journal, America's Greatest Evening newspaper.

THROUGH two wars and their aftermaths, through two previous depressions and the fat years that followed, throughout the long and varied march of time since 1896, steadily The Journal has kept ahead.

The reasons for its pace and progress are plain to anyone with eyes to see.

Better than any other newspaper it mirrors the lives and serves the wants of the people who are New York—understands their human desires and motives, earns and holds their staunch regard.

Come good times or bad, war or peace, year-in, year-out, in reader-power and selling-power, it keeps to the advance.

Today, with more than 500,000 City buyers—170,000 more than any other New York evening newspaper—with more Suburban sales than any standard-size New York morning paper and more than all other evening papers combined!—with 676,000 average daily total sales and at least 2,000,000 readers, the largest evening circulation in America .....

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

America's Greatest Evening Newspaper

The New York Evening Journal goes home, where masks come off and real life goes on. Enterprise, not sensationalism, dictates the insight into human needs with which it is edited. Every issue is a great human document, appealing alike to rich and poor, reflecting not merely news of life but life itself as it is lived in our day. Every issue is aimed unerringly to cut through sophisticated sham and reach the emotions that underlie the thinking and action of mankind. Because it gets to the roots of the lives of its 2,000,000 readers in the world's greatest market, it is the greatest local advertising medium in the world today.

OFFICIALS ADMIT NORMAN, BIG BANKER, WILL SEE MILLS

secretly at Bar Harbor, Me., with Thomas W. Lamont, most active negotiator on political-financial matters for J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents of the British government and power behind the throne of the Hoover administration, and that Normac had also secretly conferred with Elliot Wadsworth, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of foreign loans and one time secretary of the United States World War debt funding commission, and George W. Norris, governor of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank.

There was the further disclosure that Mr Norman had slipped quietly out of his Bar Harbor retreat to break his "holiday" by conferring secretly in New York with George Leslie Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

As is customary in these conferences with Norman, involving administration policy in financial matters running into billions of public funds, no public statement could be secured as to the object of the Mills-Norman meetings. All is mystery and secrecy and a fixed determination to keep as facts from the public whose money is at stake.

Secretary Mills admitted he had received a report from Harrison on the conversation with Norman. The session lasted an hour. Mills would reveal nothing of its nature beyond that it related to international financial questions and an exchange of information.

Mills contended he had no engagement to see Norman in Washington and fell back on the statement that the Bank of England head was "on holiday." The treasury head denied Harrison was a go-between for Norman and the administration.

Mills disputed some reports over the matters which were made of Norman's visit.

It was stated, however, in one responsible quarter that the question of Britain returning immediately to the gold standard would not be the major topic as British official opinion is opposed to such a move at this time.

In competent circles it was declared the chief purpose of the Mills-Norman exchanges would be:

1—Ascertainment of the private purposes of the Hoover administration relative to a two-year or three-year extension of the World War debt moratorium of 1931.

2—An elaboration of President Hoover's acceptance speech declaration as to what trade benefits he would require as a basis for reopening the war debt settlements for reductions or cancellation.

England Seeks Definite Information on Moratorium

In relation to the first topic there was this explanation:

Unless the administration is ready some commitment provision or otherwise as to what it intends doing about extension of the moratorium Great Britain as a creditor unit and the Bank of England must begin consideration of a payment of $65,970,000 due on December 15.

The Bank of England cannot wait until after the presidential election of November 8 to learn what the administration intends doing. Some outline of policy is held to be of the highest necessity irrespective of whether political expediency might oppose any public announcement until after the elections.

In spite of assertions to the contrary, it is believed widely that the question of debt cancellation cannot be kept out of the forthcoming international economic conference, to be held probably in London. Norman seeks the private sentiment of the administration as to the cancellation agreement reached at Lausanne.

Washington doubts seriously whether Mills or the White House will permit any public announcement of the real exchanges with Norman until after the November elections. Certainly Norman, who came here secretly under a false name and hid away until discovered in a small New England town, is not going to make public the purpose of his visit.

Administration's Policies Directed by Bankers

The whole matter is submerged in disturbing and discreditable secrecy and has the atmosphere of a criminal detective story. The previous record of the international bankers in plundering the American public and of the Hoover administration in supporting debt cancellation, proposing moratorium, endorsing swindling foreign bond issues, and furthering the plans of the big financiers, no matter how nefarious, adds public doubt and distrust to an already sinister situation.

One thing stands out as obvious and incontrovertible, and that is that the Hoover administration has completely surrendered its fate and submitted its public policies to the determination of the international bankers.

The bankers who are making the Hoover campaign expect due compensation. The misfortune is that the pound of flesh which they will exact will be taken from the already lean ribs of the long suffering American public.

Norman wants to know the private purposes of the Hoover administration in regard to moratoriums and war debt cancellation.

What is Mr. Norman ready to offer in return for favorable "private purposes" on essentially public matters."

This whole Norman affair threatens a scandal greater even than the perversion of federal funds by the administration to recompense supporters and to subserve private political ends.

The great threat is greater because it involves not merely the surrender of the public interest to a privileged class, but the possible betrayal of the rights and welfare of the whole American people for the benefit of foreign nations.

If there is any honesty in the Norman activity any Americanism in the Hoover administration let it have an end to discreditable secrecy.

Senator King of Utah, Democratic member of the Senate finance committee which handles all such matters as war debts, declared it was incumbent on the Hoover administration to reveal at once just what these secret conferences are all about. King said:

"Montagu Norman, on his previous secret and open visit to the United States, always has consulted with high officials of this government and the international bankers of Wall Street on matters involving billions of dollars of the American taxpayers' money, so, naturally, one is led to the conclusion that he is here for such a purpose now.

"If Norman is over here to pave the way for a new debt settlement, which would cost the American taxpayers billions of dollars, it is the manifest duty that any negotiations be conducted in the open and not in the secrecy at a Maine summer resort. The administration should say immediately what the purpose of these numerous conferences with Montagu Norman are about. Our people are entitled to know.

"In view of the statements made in the Hearst papers that Norman is discussing debts and would like to help the Republicans and fight the Democrats because we have declared against cancellation, Norman should issue a denial if this is not true. Instead, we have nothing but silence from him."

Senate Inquiry Needed Says Sen. Brookhart

Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, declared that any suggestion Norman and other international bankers were attempting to "meddle" in the domestic politics of the United States would demand an inquiry by the Senate. Brookhart added:

"Naturally, Mr. Norman does not consult plain Americans like me, but I have no doubt he has been in touch with some of the internationally minded officials of the government, as well as the international bankers down in Wall Street. No good for the United States ever came from that gang. Prof. Skinner is a good name for Mr. Norman, as we have learned to our sorrow.

"I can only surmise the purpose of his errand here, and that is to dig a little deeper into the treasury. Whatever international transactions affecting the treasury and the taxpayers of the country is now in the making, should be open and above board and not cloaked in secrecy.

"As to our national politics, that is none of their business. If Mr. Norman or any other international banker meddles in our national election affairs and it becomes known, it will be a powerful factor in the campaign. The American people will brook no such interference.

"Just now there is a gigantic effort to boom stocks and we ought to know whether the Wall Street gamblers are putting up the market to raise a campaign fund for Hoover, which will be taken out of the suckers later. That matter will be investigated by the banking and currency committee and the Howell committee on campaign expenditures."

Norman's U. S. Visit Stirs Ire of French

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.

Paris, Aug. 30 — Fear that the visit to the United States of Montagu Norman, president of the Bank of England, is a prelude to independent British action in reopening war debts negotiations was manifested here today.

Anxiety is frankly expressed lest Norman's mysterious visit serve to break the supposedly solid front of European debtors formed at Lausanne.

The so-called Lausanne gentlemen's agreement stipulated that Britain was not to enter debt negotiations with the United States alone.

Paris hopes the meeting between Premier Herriot and British Home Secretary Samuel on the Isle of Jersey, or the later Cherbourg meeting of Herriot and British Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain, will allay France's fears.

"The question is particularly of interest to us! England hurrying to negotiate separately with America."

"Attempts are made to reassure us by saying that, thanks to the accord of confidence concluded with England, we are certain of her active co-operation.

"The famous accord lost all its Anglo-French value when it was counter-signed by a most miscellaneous assortment of governments.

"If now England negotiates with America without consulting France, the worthlessness of the accord will appear most clearly."

"Meanwhile, Montagu Norman is in the United States and he has not crossed the Atlantic on a joy ride."

London Accepts Harrison Denial of Big Loan Plan

London, Aug. 30 (AP)—The emphatic denial by George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, of reports that Montagu Norman is in America to negotiate an international loan is accepted in official and business circles here as authoritative.

No responsible source in London has said that the objective of Mr. Norman's visit to New York is the flotation of a $2,500,000,000 loan for liquidation of war debts and reparations. Several responsible individuals pointed out that reparations already have been liquidated.

The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". THIS IS LIFE

"FATHER LOVE" PROMPTS CHAPLIN TO SAVE HIS SONS FROM FAME

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS

CHARLIE CHAPLIN doesn't want his two little sons to go into the films. His former wife, Lita Gray Chaplin, is all set to sign contracts by which the children will be turned into the Hollywood maelstrom. There is a possibility that one or both of them may have something of the father's talent. There is a great possibity that neither of them has any talent at all. In that case they would be trading on their father's name. But that sort of success has a habit of not lasting very long in Hollywood.

PROF. ROGERS

The press despatches say that Charlie argues that he wishes his children to grow up, natural and unspoiled, in an atmosphere where moving pictures are not the only subject of interest. Whether that is possible so long as they live in Hollywood is doubtful. Whether that is possible with a mother who is determined to push them into moving pictures is more than doubtful.

For years we have read about the little children who are peddled about from studio to studio by parents ambitious or mercenary, seeking to cash in on the talent of a child who may be able to support the whole family. A notable success means a fortune. The child may turn out to be another Jackie Coogan, or a Jacky Cooper, or a Baby Peggy, or a Mitzi Green, or a Dicky Moore, or even a Spanky. Or missing that fame he may win a moderate success as one of "Our Gang," if only he be fat enough or black enough or freckled enough. So the parents wish and hope.

"Father Love" Sways Chaplin

For every one of these there are probably dozens of poor little unfortunates living in the unnatural, artificial atmosphere of the film-world, little girls with permanent waves and all the sophisticated airs of cheap vaudeville singers and dancers, and little boys who never have a chance to be real boys because they hang around studios. If the family is desperately poor and the child shows promise, that is perhaps excusable.

But the Chaplin children, their father argues, are not desperately poor. They and their mother have plenty of money. Charlie is one of the few fortunate stars of Hollywood who have kept their wealth. There is no need of their undertaking the taxing, nerve-racking work that the modern sound picture, with its many rehearsals, constant retakings and night work entails.

Then Charlie lets the rat out of the bag. He wants, he says, the children to have the kind of childhood he never had. He does not want to have them begin earning their living too early. Particularly he does not want them plunged into the life of the theater at such a tender age. And who will not agree that he has great right on his side?

Thomas Burke, the author of the Limehouse stories, particularly of the famous Griffith film "Broken Blossoms," tells us why Charlie does not want this for his children. He knows Charlie very well. Charlie discovered that they grew up together, at about the same time, in cockney London, both desperately poor, Burke in office work, Charlie in cheap music halls.

Burke tells all about it in a fascinating article titled "A Comedian" in his latest book of London sketches "City of Encounters," (Little Brown & Co.). It is a long, rambling, intimate, rather sad piece of psychoanalysis about the most famous comedian in the world

The power of Charlie in the films is simply that he is always the poor cockney boy, always left out of everything, who never has a chance.

"That is why Charlie—and Charles himself—arouses in almost all women the protective, mothering instinct. Because Charlie is Charles at 14, and his stuff is the stuff of the London streets and the old music halls lifted, by his personality and genius, into bizarre poetry. In all his films he is living in the past, recapturing the atmosphere of the streets of South London, recapturing the spirit of his first boyish love affairs, his first street escapade against authority, his first terrified defiance of the bully, his first achievement of dignity, his first visit to a restaurant, his first entry into the world of the well-to-do . . .

"If Charles is hard and cold, it is because his first decade was hard and cold—orphanage, back rooms, back streets, broken boots, fish and chips; the craven ugliness of poverty and the mordant stain of it. He has told me of the gnawing misery he knew when, being without socks, he was sent to school wearing a pair of his mother's tights cut down; and of the grotesque shame in which his brother stood about on wet days, wearing a green plush mantle of his mother's cut roughly into an overcoat. And of the conspiracy of silence in which they were bound never to let the other people in the house know that they did not have Sunday dinner, which even the poorest among them had.

"Only those who have belonged to that way of life can understand the sick horror of things like these . . . what it means to a sensitive youth to have to wear a dirty collar for four days; to be barred from decent intercourse because one hasn't the right manners and the right voice, and to live for years under the freezing patronage and toleration which is only the first punishment for belonging to the poor.

His Kindliness Bred of Poverty

"And of his Charlie is tender and pathetic, it is because Charles has known the kindness and the futile courage and the ineffectual struggles with which the poor meet the shames and distresses and social injustices that are imposed on them every day; and all the other mean minutiae of poverty . . . Charles knows it all . . . He no longer belongs to it but it will never let him go. It colors all his life and inspires all his work."

That is an extraordinarily interesting passage and I, for one, believe in its truth. It explains that quality that even the most callous and casual spectator has recognized in the Chaplin films, the sense of something not far removed from tragedy, the heart-breaking quality of even the funniest comedy, the pathos and tenderness with which the man with the baggy pants and the funny shoes treats the street waifs in his pictures, the old, the poor, the blind girl and all the rest. They are all a part of him and of his suffering youth.

That being so, one can understand why the millionaire father should not wish his well-fed, richly-bred, luxurious, happy little sons, with their prosperous mother, to go into the films merely as a publicity stunt of a money-making game, without any knowledge of what life can mean to those for whom earning a living is a necessity.

Charlie Chaplin went at an unbelievable early age into the cheap and hard and vulgar life of a comedian in a slum music-hall. He began his film career as an underpaid, unknown, knock-about comedian. That is what the theater and films mean to him. He knows what they can be at their worst. He sees no reason why his little sons need enter such a life, even under the happiest auspices. Most wise parents will believe that he is in the right.

West Roxbury Aroused by Shift in New Roadway Plans

PROTEST SENT CURLEY CITES ADDED COST

Charge Influential Land-Owners Will Benefit Through Purchase of Right-of-Way

Residents of Buchanan rd., West Roxbury, were aroused today over a sudden change in plans for a connecting roadway between West Roxbury parkway and the new Center st. boulevard in that section.

In a petition to Mayor Curley they charged the new plans divert the roadway from city-owned property to private property, the latter entailing expense of purchase, the blasting of a ledge and added surveying expense.

Apart from the petition, they charged the change was made to benefit influential persons who own land on the new route.

The petition forecasts danger to children of Buchanan rd., pointing out that the section would be within 150 feet of two traffic arteries.

It added that the new plans would mean destruction of many trees and other natural scenery.

The petition was drawn by a committee of residents headed by Mrs. James H. Callahan of 19 Buchanan rd. It was sent to Mayor Curley by registered mail

WILD RIDE ENDS IN LYNN COURT

A wild automobile flight, climaxed when the fugitive car shot across a dump and dived into a creek, nearly drowning its three allegedly drunken occupants, had an aftermath in Lynn court today when the trio were held in $1000 each for a hearing September 3.

William Grey, 26, of South st., Lynn, was charged with larceny, drunkenness and drunken driving. Charles F. Furey, 23, of South Common st., and Joseph P. Landers, 24, of Stuart st., both in Lynn, were charged with larceny and drunkenness.

Their arrest came after Grey had nearly been drowned in the creek off the Saugus river and after Furey and Landers, who had been pulled from the water, had put up a furious battle against Patrolmen Kennan and Grady of Lynn.

A fourth man was believed by police to have been in the car and to have drowned, but this was denied by the three under arrest

The chase started when the policemen, parked in a cruiser car in Sumner st., Lynn, saw the big sedan roar by them and the driver snap off his lights.

The chase led into River st. pl., from where the driver of the fugitive car headed out over the dump to come to grief in the creek.

2 PRETTY GIRL HITCH-HIKERS SENT TO JAIL

With their only "crime" that of being hitch-hikers, two pretty girls, clad in white-duck trousers and white shirts, went to jail today from Somerville court to await a hearing on Thursday.

The girls, Barbara Graham, pretty 20-year-old redhead, and Helen Stevens, 18, a brunette, were sent to East Cambridge jail by Judge Malcolm E. Sturtevant after a star-chamber session in his lobby featured by his demands that the girls reveal their true identities.

"You are going to be held until you refresh your memory," Judge Sturtevant could be heard to shout even through the closed door, as he was closeted with Miss Graham.

When she came out, however, she appeared unperturbed and smiled at her companion, who succeeded her in the lobby conference.

HOW THEY WERE ARRESTED

Although the girls said they had stopped in at quarters of Ladder 2 in Broadway, Somerville, merely to ask road directions and to have their blistered feet treated, Lieut William Brady notified police and they were arrested on a charge of being idle persons without visible means of support.

They told police they had started from Brooklyn, N. Y., a week ago yesterday to hitch-hike and went to Philadelphia. They had $2h between them. From Philadelphia they went back again to Brooklyn on Thursday, and on Friday were offered a ride from Brooklyn to Manchester, N. H., by two sailors in an automobile

The girls said they left the sailors in Manchester and hitch-hiked back to Boston, where on Sunday they had their white shirts laundered in a Chinese laundry on Beacon Hill

FED BY POLICE

Last night, following their arrest, they slept in beds at Somerville police headquarters, where they were allowed to bathe their aching feet, which bore two blisters each.

For breakfast the police bought them egg sandwiches, crullers and coffee and then they went to court where they insisted that they had no parents and no permanent home, with their last temporary residence being in Brooklyn.

The Stevens girl declared she has an uncle in Kentucky while Miss Graham said her father was killed in the war, that her mother died three years ago and that she and her companion desired to go to California where she has a sister

Fire Prevention Board Abolished

Everett's Fire Prevention Bureau composed of members of the department for special prevention work, which came into the limelight when a controversy arose over the matter of reporting at all fire department roll calls, is to be abolished by the commission, it was announced today.

PINING HEARTS WILL BE TORN IN TWAIN

With the fetching smile all gone from his face and his countenance melancholy and his spirits dejected, Rudy Vallee down at Bournhurst on the Cape told his love for Fay Webb, the bride who plans to sue him in Reno for divorce. "She can go," said the crooner in a woe-begone voice. "But I love her still." This photo shows him early today right after the ball at Bournhurst. (Staff photo.)

Fay Webb photographed on a train as she arrived in Boston to meet her crooner just a year ago. She was pensive, her thoughts enraptured by love. She will be riding another train soon—Renobound, and who can say then what her thoughts will contain?

Cemetery Opened After 45 Years to Bury Undertaker

For the first time in 45 years Somerville's oldest burying ground, the Somerville ave. cemetery, was opened today for a burial—by a coincidence that of an undertaker.

He was Alfred E. Mann, 81, of Dover st., Somerville, who had been engaged in business the same length of time the old cemetery has been closed because all its graves space was filled.

Burial was in the family lot, following services at the undertaking parlors of W. T. Gill, 168 Pearl st. Mr. Mann left no near relatives. The cemetery contains the remains of many Civil War Veterans and the first monument erected to one of them

FAMILIES SAVED AS SO. BOSTON FIRE SPREADS

Three-Alarm Blaze Sweeps the District; Police and Firemen Help Out Home Occupants

Fire that started in a three-story wooden duplex house at 81-83 Farragut rd., South Boston, spread to three other houses and drove 60 persons to the street early today.

Many of the persons routed were partially overcome by smoke and were given first aid treatment by firemen.

Three alarms were sounded. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

The blaze first spread to 89 Farragut rd., and then sparks set the rear of the adjoining houses at 934 and 936 East Fourth st., on fire

At 81 Farragut rd., Mrs. Julia McCarthy and her daughter, Mrs. Eileen Roberts escaped from the first floor. Mrs. Julia Johnson and six members of her family, and Mr. and Mrs. John Fay and their three children made their way down from the second and third floors.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Paige and their three children were rescued from the first floor at 83. Arthur Costello, with his seven brothers and sisters, escaped from the second floor, and Patrolman Albert Eunson, of the Athens st. station, helped his wife and four members of their family to the street from the third floor.

At 934 East Fourth st., Roland Swineler and his family of eight were led to the street by fireman. At 936 East Fourth st. Patrolman Chester Murray of Fields Corner station aroused his family and led them to the street. William J. Orr and six members of his family and George Connolly and five members of his family also escaped

An investigation will be started today by the fire marshal's office to determine the origin of the blaze.

HE PICKS WRONG POCKET TO PICK

Picking the pocket of a selectman is a serious matter Harry Heffman of Calender st., Dorchester, learned today in Dedham court. He was found guilty of attempted larceny from Selectman Peter Feeney of Norwood at a carnival on Aug. 12. Judge Sanborn sentenced him to one year in the House of Correction, then suspended it.

Frank Harris of Walpole and William Stanley of Dwight st., Boston, arrested at the same time, were found guilty of being vagabonds and given suspended sentences.

NORTH SHORE'S FLOWER SHOW OPENS

North Shore Leaders in 3-Day Event

One of the most important of the annual flower shows that have been [illegible] during the year [illegible] at the North Shore [illegible] Horticultural Hall [illegible].

A number of the garden clubs and many of the largest estates along the North Shore are co-operating and entries have been [illegible] that the exhibit is expected to surpass all previous shows of the kind.

This year several special exhibits will be featured and many society matrons of the colony have charge of the different classes.

Table Decorations

Mrs [illegible] A. Shaw and Mrs [illegible] Downing are in charge of a special class featuring an entrance hall table with appropriate arrangement of flowers, an exhibit of economy lunch tables to cost not more than $8 a table and [illegible] [illegible]

Mrs Gordon Abbot Jr. has charge of an exhibition of dinner table flower decorations. All the [illegible] classes will be shown in the main hall while most of the special exhibits have been placed in a tent in the basement. Others will be shown in the balcony.

Summer Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

The return swimming and diving meet between the Eel River Beach Club and the Scituate Club attracted many of the South Shore notables. Scituate won with a score of 71—43 but Eel River won the previous meet.

Among [illegible] Sunday were Mrs. C. Baker of Scituate in a very modish white and red sport frock. She wore a stylish little white hat and a collar of white, which set off her costume to advantage.

Mrs Jane McLaughlin looked very chic and dainty in her white crepe dress with the stylish little cape effect, and a wee, white beret hat that most becomingly showed her light brown hair.

Miss Anne Crosby of Scituate and Jamaica Plain wore a red and white print silk, with an attractive little red straw beret, and the stylish cape that fell from her shoulders.

Mrs E H Baker, golf champion of Scituate, appeared in a bois-de-rose, two-piece knit sport frock, and wore a filmy piece of brown tulle tight about her head.

Mrs Sherman L. Whipple was seen in an attractive costume. She wore a narrow-brimmed, velour hat, of a becoming shade of green, and a canary yellow dress that was very effective. Her small daughter, Margaret Louise Whipple, wore an apple-green organdy frock, with a dainty little white collar.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Curtis followed the meet with keen interest. Mrs. Curtis was all in a bright shade of sapphire blue, her frock being a printed silk.

Dr and Mrs. George of Scituate were spectators. Dr George is the guiding light of the Scituate Yacht Club. He has presented a silver cup to the club that is winner of most events.

Mrs George looked very charming in a light green silk dress, with a stylish short brown coat and brown sport hat to match.

Mrs Erwin was present in a brown and white georgette frock, a stylish brown hat, and very striking amber earrings that matched her string of rare, amber beads. Hers was a symphony in brown and amber tones and was [illegible].

The ladies' breast stroke race was an interesting event. Miss Harriet Atkins won with Miss Janet Meyer second, both of Eel River Beach Club.

The girls' diving attracted quite a bit of attention. Miss Margaret Rand of Eel River Beach Club won. She wore a flamingo colored bathing suit and executed her dives with rhythm and precision. Miss Louise Fry of Eel River Beach Club was second. She wore a white suit with a low back and bright Kelly green trimmings.

Miss Priscilla Smith of Scituate whose swimming earlier in the meet piled up the score for her team, did some very nice diving, in a deep red suit that looked well on her lithe graceful figure.

Mrs R DeCormis of Scituate entertained a group of friends at her home after the meet. Her daughter, Miss Anna DeCormis, assisted. Miss DeCormis wore a green ensemble, with a coquettish little white hat, that was very becoming.

Mrs. Lothrop Withington is entertaining Mrs. Alice Spalding Bowen and her son, Mr. Bowen, both from Honolulu.

Mrs. Bowen attended the swimming meet on Sunday, and looked very chic in a black and white crepe frock with a wee coarse straw beret hat with a saucy little bow in front.

Mrs. Lothrop Withington wore a white, knitted dress and a broad-brimmed straw hat.

She and Mrs. LeBaron Barker, earlier in the day, won the Ladies' Mixed Double Tennis Match at the Eel River Beach Club.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

New York has always had its bohemian and artistic life, and its hordes of curiosity seekers. Like an enormous circus it is always [illegible] and is [illegible] up, ever so often only to drift back immediately into its old ways.

People of wealth and fashion used to go slumming in the old days and it was considered quite smart to have a supper party in some mean little saloon down on the Bowery and watch the strange goings on of the underworld, or Chinatown and dens of iniquity, and sit, in dinner coats and ermine and evening gowns, on the benches of the night courts. "Would you know what the city hides? Go to her police courts," Clement Wood has sung in his poem on Birmingham.

But if there are sordid [illegible] there, consider how many there must be in palpitating Manhattan.

Yet as the Londoner seldom goes to Whitechapel or Limehouse and the Parisian to the peep shows of Montmartre, so many New Yorkers have never visited Hell's Kitchen, Greenwich Village and all that dark upper region of our city where the Negroes dwell.

For several winters it became "chic" to go to Harlem, and "do" the various cabarets and eating places there; to watch the black and white races dance with one another, and to listen to the low crooning of the Africans in hidden-away clubs and mysterious underground, smoke-filled rooms. Lurid atmosphere and much glamorous fiction have been written about these places, and the occasional visitor probably knows more about them than the oldest inhabitant.

I used to like the gay little restaurants, filled with struggling artists and poets, down in Greenwich Village, before they were spoiled by trippers and became nothing but professional showplaces.

When illustrators abandon their illustrating to strum guitars for the delight of the patrons of certain bohemian restaurants, and literally come to earn their living doing this, one loses interest; for spontaneity has gone, and in its place is a drab attempt to be naughty and wicked; for one sees the strings that guide the puppet and all illusion vanishes.

Greenwich Village soon became self-conscious, and when that happened its death knell was rung. Eating in cellars and garrets becomes a bore after a time.

Most of us have too much respect for the Negro to wish to invade his own haunts and habitations, to pry into his manner of living to look upon him as something of a curiosity and not as a human being like ourselves.

The Southern darky, with his lack of guile, is utterly different from the manufactured [illegible] of Harlem who [illegible] a [illegible] for the casual [illegible] [illegible] by motor and taxi [illegible] [illegible] and a [illegible].

But there [illegible] for those who wish to experience it [illegible] its freest and best, and at its shallowest and softest.

If you wish to learn how many facets New York possesses, you may dine in and English tap room at the Prince George Hotel on E 28th st, and afterward step across the road to the church that used to be called St Leo's, and behind an iron grille see the nuns of the Perpetual Adoration at their ever-lighted altar.

Only a few feet away is thundering 5th ave. with its riot of [illegible] and to the east, on Lexington ave, is a lane of little restaurants with proprietors of all nationalities—[illegible] French, Swedish [illegible]

[illegible] Drive bus to the end of the line, where Fort George ave. is intersected [illegible] at 192 [illegible] st, you will come to a curious and beautiful spot, and feel almost like stout Cortez when, with all his men, he stood upon a peak in Darien.

[illegible] space [illegible] To the left [illegible] Hudson [illegible] and the [illegible] where George Grey Barnard [illegible] works.

These buildings remain like bulworks overhanging the dangerous ledges below where a sort of phantom little city lies in utter serenity. You will feel as if you had been transported to Montmartre; as if you were a character in "Louise," looking out over those romantic roofs.

Yet you are on the upper edge of Manhattan, and here it is as beautiful, with its winding, foreign-looking, crooked streets and crazy pavements as any spot in any city you will see abroad; and you will wonder why you have never before come here to look down from this sudden eminence.

As evening falls the lights burst into bloom, exactly as in a play. The moon may rise, like a big cameo, over the river, to give an added lustre to the scene; and you will stand by your iron railing and almost decide that you will move to this airy domain, since it would be so wonderful every night to contemplate the panorama all around you.

And then—you hear 50 radios from as many windows, their raucous voices announcing awful evening programs. And you turn away, hastily and sadly, and rush for the nearest downtown bus.

HITLER'S FIGURES MAKE POLITICS SIMPLE

By GILBERT SELDES

To my great relief, the tangled situation in Germany has been reduced to figures, Adolf Hitler having proposed a mathematical formula which most politicians will like. A few days ago he applied for the job as dictator as if he had seen a "Boy Wanted" sign outside the Government offices and was sure he could meet all requirements. He seemed miffed when his offer was rejected and countered with the proposal that he and his party receive 75% of the offices in the Cabinet. The reasoning is that if he had won 51% of all the votes he would be entitled to all the jobs; as he got about 25% less than half the votes he would be satisfied with 25% less than all the Cabinet seats. This is impressive and may work out all right. For myself I prefer the more melodramatic method; I do not think that Mr. Franklin Roosevelt will keep Mr. Mills in office next year merely because the Republicans will get 37% of the ballots. And it is more noble to pop up and say, "You want Mussolini, but he's busy in Italy; take me—I'm the best small-time Mussolini you can get."

GILBERT SELDES

Modesty in Science

Scientists have [illegible] [illegible] generation, [illegible] been [illegible] that one other scientist could prove them wrong. Yet when they touched on simple human problems a certain arrogance has crept into their speech. I quoted recently, for instance, the group of Columbia engineers who said that the present leaders of the [illegible] are totally unfitted for their jobs and I [illegible] cheek and incompetence to protest.

On one question [illegible] [illegible] dogmatic [illegible] After we are born [illegible] as [illegible] and classify us as morons [illegible] But [illegible] have been fighting for the right [illegible] [illegible] a world [illegible]

Haldane's Doubts

It is with considerable pleasure [illegible] views of J. B. S. Haldane [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

"I don't think I know enough to lay down the law for other people. It is not the scientific man's business to tell his fellow man what to do. . . . We are not a new church trying to tell the world what is right and wrong."

This is more modesty than is spread over the whole first page of the newspapers [illegible] speeches. [illegible] more modesty than [illegible] could [illegible] Dr. Haldane [illegible]

"The possibility of good people getting killed off in war is a far more real danger than having twice as many lunatics fifty years hence," he says. "The essential thing, the great effort [illegible] good people alive is to stop the next war."

Learning from Russia

A collaborator of Dr. Haldane [illegible] little book, "A Scientist Among the S[illegible]" [illegible] by Harper, with an equally grave refrain. "If the rest of the world refuses to learn from [illegible] Russia as well as [illegible] the rest of the world." From where we stand [illegible] Americans can [illegible] imagine anything worse [illegible] the present [illegible] to be sure that [illegible] off than the [illegible] workers of America. We [illegible] Shakespeare's Hamlet with the [illegible] gown, a dishpan on his head; on the other hand, they have no unemployment.

Huxley talked to a magistrate in court. He said that he had no previous training in the law, adding that courses for magistrates do exist, but "in general one trusts one's class intuition." In our superior, civilization, magistrates trust to getting away with it.

Wedding Set for Sept. 10

The wedding of Miss Mary Prindleville, daughter of Mr and Mrs. John D. Prindleville, to Mr Joseph Crosby is to take place on Saturday, September 10, with the reception at the Prindleville home at 863 Central st., Framingham Center.

Miss Anne Crosby, sister of the bridegroom, is to be maid of honor, with the Misses Nancy and Katharine Prindleville, sisters of the bride, as bridesmaids. Miss Prindleville will be attended only by members of the two immediate families.

The ushers are to be Mr. John Prindleville, brother of the bride, Mr. Jake Turner, former Harvard football star; Messrs. Charles and Bernard Day of New York, Mr Howard Burns, Harvard baseball and football star, and Mr Henry Cullen of New York.

U. S. Wants Title to Patents of Employes

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—The government wants the Supreme Court to give it title to all inventions made by federal employes in the course of their regular work.

Lower courts in three cases have ruled a patent belongs to the government only when the employe was assigned specifically to make the invention.

A review petition brought by the government involves three important radio patents issued to Percival D. Lowell and Francis W. Dunmore while employed by the bureau of standards.

Wrestling Show for Charity

Miss Lucille M. Phelan daughter of Mr and Mrs. James P. Phelan, of Lynn Shore Drive and Little's Point, Swampscott, is chairman of patrons and patronesses for the wrestling bout tonight at Curtis Field, for the benefit of the North Shore Home for Crippled Children, 128 Ocean st., Lynn. Frazer, William T. Frary, Miss M. Silsbee, Miss Louise Oliver, Miss Mildred Dexter, Miss Constance Melanson, Miss Marion Fuir, Miss Helen Bresnahan.

MEDFORD WILL PARE BUDGET TO CUT TAX

The battle of the Medford taxpayers against the $6.40 tax rate boost went into a new stage today when an aldermanic committee selected three citizens unconnected with the city government, to aid in a study of the city's expenses.

The aim of this joint committee of four aldermen and three laymen will be to inspect the budget with a view to consolidating or abolishing various departments, reducing salaries and otherwise cut expenses of government.

Tonight the Medford Taxpayers League holds a meeting at the office of Angelo Bordinaro, 272 Main st., to make its own survey of the budget and recommend reductions.

AMERICAN AGAIN DAY AHEAD WITH NEWS

MRS. RUDY VALLEE SEEKS DIVORCE

EXCLUSIVE!

YESTERDAY'S AMERICAN

More scoops by the Boston Evening American first in the news while the rest of the lads were looking the other way.

Week-end beats, you might call these—not that you don't know it by now, but persons who read the Boston Evening American can regularly get the news first so habitually that they have come to expect it.

You learned yesterday that Rudy Vallee and Fay Webb had reached the parting of the ways, but you learned it only through this newspaper, if you bought it on your way home from work.

Of course everybody had it today, but Boston Evening American readers knew it many hours in advance. Just a little thing we did on Monday.

Then on Saturday, this newspaper gave to its readers the results of the first 500 welfare cases investigated by the new police bureau [illegible] that they had [illegible] and the start [illegible] that had been made.

AMERICAN FINDS MANY CROOKS, DEAD ON DOLE

EXCLUSIVE!

—EVENING AMERICAN OF LAST SATURDAY—

This story was of prime importance to thousands of welfare recipients—and to every taxpayer in the city. It remained—as usual—for the Boston Evening American to be first with the information, although no official announcement had been made.

Of course, also on Saturday, there was this newspaper's revelation of the "inside" of the Maurice Goldberg kidnaping and the offer of $7,000 ransom made to the kidnapers, but this is mentioned just in passing.

ANYWAY, YOU GET THE NEWS FIRST IN THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN THE NEWS WHEN IT IS NEWS. NOT TOMORROW BUT TODAY.

A. G. ROBINSON, AUTHOR, DIES

Albert G. Robinson, 77, veteran New England newspaper correspondent and author, died today in New York city after an illness of two weeks.

He was correspondent for the New York Evening Post in Cuba and Porto Rico during the Spanish-American war and later was an editorial writer on the New York Sun. He wrote several books on Caribbean problems.

He was born in Winchester. Survivors are two brothers and two sisters, the Rev. A. Edward Robinson of Billerica, Henry C. Robinson of Winchester, Mrs. Charles A. Spalding of Everett and Mrs. George A. Murray of Duxbury.

Funeral services will be held in New York Thursday and interment will be either in Winchester or Cambridge.

His clubs included the Cosmos, the National Press of Washington, D. C., Harvard Travelers of Boston and the Chemists and Century of New York.

Thrill-Bent Mayor Flees as Police Find Him One

This might be a story of beating about the bush.

It centers around Mayor Alfred W. Peterson of Woburn, who [illegible] has been seeking thrills by trips in police cruising cars.

Things were quiet as he cruised last night with City Solicitor Stephen S. Bean and Patrolman Edward D. Walsh, but the police car radio suddenly told of a "Peeping Tom" scare a mile away.

The spot was reached in record time. Walsh and Bean deserted His Honor and thrashed bushes in the darkness of a hedge.

It sounded like a furious battle to Mayor Peterson. He leaped to the wheel of the police car and drove madly for aid.

He returned in half an hour with Patrolman William E. Dexter to find an irate city solicitor and the irate Patrolman Walsh trudging back to town.

"Where's the peeping Tom?" whispered the mayor.

"There wasn't any," chorused Bean and Walsh, nor did they whisper.

"But you were beating about the bush," parried Peterson.

"You are now," came the return, "how about explaining your 'runout' on us."

The mayor convinced them he had not deserted through fear and they believed him—after a while.

Repeal Council Head Appeals $25 Fine

Lawrence, Aug. 30—James L. Kennedy, 37, of Worcester, New England manager of the Repeal Council, Inc., was found guilty and fined $25 in District court today for defrauding an inn during the American Legion convention.

He appealed and was held in $100 bail for Superior court.

PURPLE HEART FOR FIREMAN

Charles W. Quinn, 32, inspector of the fire prevention department of the Boston fire department, was today presented with the Order of the Purple Heart by James P. Rose, newly elected state commander of the American Legion.

College Girls Want to Wed and Have Babies; It's the Men Who Are at Fault

Co-eds have the best chance to achieve both of these ambitions.

When college girls don't marry they're not to blame—the fault is with the men who prefer the beautiful but dumb.

[illegible]

... doubt it, you have only to check June lists of engagements announced by members of the senior class.

SOLD ON MARRIAGE

Why shouldn't co-eds wed? As Floyd Dell, wise and sympathetic observer of modern youth, points out in "Love in the Machine Age":

They are, in fact, using the educational period as a courtship and mating period. This is taken for granted in coeducational institutions. And it is interesting to note that even in sex-segregated girls' colleges there now is a student tradition which makes a certain amount of dating with men more or less socially obligatory."

We discovered the truth of this ... [illegible]

"CHEATED" SHE SAYS

For years college women have been scolded for not getting married and raising large families, while all the time this was the very thing they wanted to do. College women all over this continent are being cheated out of motherhood because college men nearly always pass them by when they are looking for wives.

[illegible]

"College women used to have to wait till they were asked—now, if the men don't ask us, we ask them," a curly-headed junior laughingly asserted.

How Much of Beauty in Your Life

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I SAY TO YOU—"How much beauty have you in your life?"

You start to make a list. You think of the beautiful things you own . . . the beautiful things you have done.

A ring. A few fine books. A picture. Your new car. That fine tennis racquet. The trip you took to Florida. The time you saw Pavlowa dance. The music lessons you're going to take this winter.

Elsie Robinson

Beautiful things you own or have seen or have done, you name them over.

There's the beauty I have in my life, you say.

But you're wrong. You may have all these possessions and experiences in your life, yet have no beauty. You may have none of these things and yet walk with beauty every hour.

Once I read a verse by Norma Strand which defined beauty. Here it is:

BEAUTY

Beauty is not in the ...
Nor in the tree,
Nor in the sky,
Nor in the sea,
But something bound in the blood
Of me."

[illegible]

BEAUTY IS NOT OUTSIDE US ... IT IS IN US.

BEAUTY CANNOT BE BOUGHT OR TAUGHT ... IT MUST BE LIVED. AND BEAUTY IS THE ONE THING WHICH ANY MAN MAY POSSESS TO ANY MEASURE ... AND WHICH ANY MAN MAY EXPERIENCE IN ANY PLACE ... PROVIDED HE HAS THE UNDERSTANDING OF BEAUTY "BOUND IN HIS BLOOD."

How much of your life have you spent envying "people who have lovely things"? And yet you can have only as much loveliness as there is within you yourself.

You can have beauty. You can have all the beauty you want. And nothing can ever take it away from you.

BUT YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE WHO CAN FIND THAT BEAUTY FOR YOURSELF.

AND YOU CAN FIND IT ONLY THROUGH THE GROWTH OF YOUR OWN SPIRIT.

In all these simple sights Beauty waits. It is yours—IF YOU CAN FIND IT.

Clean Hands Will Avoid Many Ills

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

Dr. Copeland

The sleeves are rolled up and the nails are cleaned and filed. The arms and hands are immersed in an ample amount of soap and water. The soap is then scrubbed in with a stiff brush ... the surfaces of the fingers and the palms of the hands ... [illegible] When the soap is rinsed the hands and arms are immersed in seventy per cent alcohol, carefully rubbed and then dried with a sterile towel.

Cleanliness of the hands is an essential part of every surgical procedure, regardless of whether it be a major or a minor operation. If everyone realized the significance and importance of clean hands and a clean body, am sure there would be fewer germs and less disease.

I do not advocate such an elaborate performance for everyday folks, of course. But care of the hands is really important and should never be neglected. Scrupulous cleanliness will prevent many an infection from disease germs.

[illegible]

... per cent of infectious diseases can be traced to soiled hands. Dirty hands carry germs, which are transferred to the nose, mouth and food. In this way such diseases as ... fever ... paralysis, typhoid fever, influenza, diphtheria and the common cold are easily carried from one person to another. The germs are transmitted from one individual to another by handshaking, the use of toilet articles, handling of food and other methods of contact.

The Romance "Ride"

She was in her second "Frivolities." Her picture was always in the tabloids and the rotogravures and from midway through her first season she'd been besieged with attention from the great and near great of the ...

She was not enough of an egotist to believe that her charm and beauty alone singled her out for marked favors.

And her preconceived ideas of the "price" a girl must pay for Broadway success had turned out all wrong, too. She'd gone back over the last two years so many times. There'd been that first meeting on the beach with the mysterious Mr. Silvani. There'd been his frank admiration of her slender figure, her glorious cloud of ... hair, her strangely deep ... eyes. And there'd been his startling question:

"Would you like to go into the Frivolities? Frankly, you are too beautiful to be wasted way up here as scenery for the summer vacation crowd."

"Why do you say that?" asked Lella—and there was an almost involuntary gesture of protest as Silvani sank down into one of the luxurious chairs.

"You are happy?" Silvani asked.

"Of course," Lella replied. "But why are you here?"

Silvani waved a hand. His eyes seemed to harden. He began to speak.

"Two years ago," he said, "you were a nobody—just a beautiful girl—but dumb. You were put on Broadway. You came to know luxury. You were kept clean, kept naive, because it suited us to have you so. You were maneuvered into the attention of Larry Dangerfield—and now you are Mrs. Dangerfield. You are the wife of one of the country's richest young men. You have social position. You have the love of a splendid young man. You have happiness. You have everything.

"It would be a shame to spoil it all—but there is a matter of percentages, after all.

"You had a marriage settlement of a million. You have access to millions more. You owe us, we figure, half a million dollars. We gave you your chance. So you can pay—or else—"

Black Costume in Favor for Autumn

By PARIS BUREAU

[illegible]

If Your Skin Is Sallow

UNSWEETENED lemonade to which a dash of salt is added (it should be taken before breakfast) is highly recommended to correct a sallow skin. If the whites of the eyes are yellow, as well as the complexion, chances are that there are digestive disturbances that call for medical attention. It is no good pinning faith to make-up when the complexion is dingy. The thing to do is to find the cause.

Curls Restrained

WHILE BUTTON curls are an interesting detail of the early autumn coiffure they are under restraint. No thick bunches of them to interfere with a display of the contour of the head, but a discreet collection along the nape of the neck, held in closely to furnish that graceful nipped-in effect. The forward arrangement of the fashionable hairdress does pretty much as it pleases, hair can be brushed straight back, be parted or sport an undulated bang.

Should Guest Bring Gift?

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When visiting a girl friend over the week-end at her home is it correct to bring a gift for her mother whom one has just met for the first time? B.

The gracious guest thoughtfully brings some trifling gift to her hostess, even if she has not met her before. A box of candy or a box of flowers or a book or two, or a group of the current magazines. These are some of the customary gifts taken to the hostess whom we don't know at all or don't know very well. Then, if we wish . . . and we should wish . . . we should send her a more consequential gift when we write our bread-and-butter letter after the visit. We will know her better then, know her home, and will understand better the kind of gift to send her to carry out appreciation with our note.

The short, sad story of SUSAN'S STOCKINGS

don't expect stockings to wear

Don't rub your stockings with cake soap if you want to cut down stocking runs. Wash them the Lux way.

Lux preserves the elasticity of your stockings—the quality that allows the delicate silk threads to give under strain and not break. Clever girls Lux their stockings after every wearing. It takes only 2 minutes and saves them many a dollar. Follow the hints below:

The LUX Way to make stockings last twice as long

2. Add lukewarm water, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali, which robs silk of its life, weakens threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.

MARKETS BUSINESS

CAN ALL THESE ERR ON BUSINESS OUTLOOK?

By B. C. FORBES

Improvement in sentiment, an essential prelude to economic recovery is becoming more notable daily.

It is especially marked in the highest financial circles— where the least is being said publicly about it.

Opportune Time for Boom

Andrew W. Robertson, head of Westinghouse, who last week was named chairman of the National Committee on Rehabilitation, said yesterday:

"Financial and credit affairs are clearly and positively better. In fact, it might well be said that whatever weaknesses there were in the financial situation have been corrected or are in the process of being cured . . . Men of affairs should ask themselves, 'Have we arrived at the period where the country has been sufficiently deflated to make a concerted effort to start business in the other direction not only advisable but absolutely necessary?' It seems very clear to me that the answer to this question should be, 'Yes.' The work can be done to greater advantage now than later because of the favorable prices of labor and material."

Taking Advantage of Prices

"With a continuation of the present upturn in car loadings, we will show black figures for August. With the higher prices for cotton and wheat, South and West are going to have greatly increased buying power this fall. This will mean better times for farmers, manufacturers and the railroads. Last week I saw several carloads of tractors being shipped into Iowa, the first I have seen in some months. We are now employing extra section hands to lay more ties and ballast than we anticipated we would do this year. Work can be done cheaper and better now."

Corn Crop Excellent

James E. Davidson, chairman of the Electric Refrigeration Bureau, and head of Nebraska Power, after informing me that rumors that the bureau is about to discontinue activities are unfounded, and that there is every prospect that operations will continue next year, says:

"There seems to be a much better feeling about business conditions in this section . . . Corn crop conditions in all corn-raising states — never better."

Advertising Shows Trend

Homer Guck, Chicago publisher, tells this column:

"Business is showing evidences of an upturn. The Herald and Examiner's paid advertising lineage in July exceeded a year ago, and we are doing a little better than that this month."

Salesman's Way of Aiding

Timken Silent Automatic of Detroit has issued an extraordinarily impressive broadside to salesmen reproducing scores of cheerful headlines appearing in newspaper within recent weeks, along with a message from General Sales Manager Walsh, which says, in part:

"Business is getting better—don't let anyone tell you anything different—and it's going to get even better from now on. That's as certain as the dawn that follows darkness. Stop asking your prospect, 'How's business?' rather make sure that he has noticed the recent optimistic trend of business news. There is no group in the world who can do more to restore confidence than salesmen."

Big Field for Fine Sales

President O'Neil of General Tire made this thought-compelling observation to me:

"If all the dangerous tires were to come off automobiles today every rubber manufacturer would be working overtime for the next six months."

Mental Change First to Come

Guaranty Trust Company of New York:

"It is certain that the change in mental attitude is a necessary prelude to any recovery. The cessation of hoarding, the will to buy and the impulse to build follow in natural sequence."

Can all these authorities and many thousands more who see better times dawning be wrong?

'TIRED LOOK' OF MARKET IS DECEPTIVE

By FRANK H. MELOON

That "tired look" which the stock market has assumed several times in the past fortnight has proved frequently to be most deceptive. It has resulted in the trapping of a new short interest on a number of occasions. People will begin to think some stock market letter writers are more than mere prophets if they continue to perform as one did yesterday, telling in advance how the market would open and then setting within 15 minutes the time when the major reaction of the afternoon set in. Bearish news meanwhile, has been ignored by the bulls, while the important bears have been afraid to try to make anything of it.

Communication coming to us from Pres. Horace Bowker of the American Agricultural Chemical Co. calls to mind the days when American "Aggie" was a prime investment favorite largely held in New England. There has been some re-buying lately. President Bowker points out:

Horace Bowker

"The balance sheet shows net asset values of $19,923,652 attributable to 317,121 shares of common stock outstanding after allowing for exchange of a small balance of stock in the American Agricultural Chemical Co. of Connecticut, still held by the public. This indicates a net asset value of $62.83 per share.

"Company's net quick asset position is good. There are no bank loans. From the consolidated balance sheet it will be observed that the net quick assets are $12,991,274, equal to $40.97 for each share of outstanding stock."

Pres. Bowker tells us his confidence in "Aggie's" future is undiminished. Stockholders vote at their annual meeting September 21 on a proposal to reduce authorized number of shares to 500,000 no-par shares from 2,000,000 no-par shares.

The idea of Chairman A. W. Robertson of Westinghouse Electric, head of the national committee on rehabilitation, that now is the time to push the upturn, will meet with widespread approval among those able to do it. A wheel can be made to revolve much more easily when it is already turning than when it is at a standstill.

STATE ST. Hears:

That the action of share markets indicates that the final stage of the remarkable rally from the July lows has begun. It is likely that a market in selected issues will tend to give the appearance of irregularity for the next few sessions. Indiscriminate buying will no longer prove profitable and traders intend to give their full attention to the so-called specialties.

Trading Gossip

It is in the specialties that a stale short account has been allowed to slumber. As a consequence those short such issues are believed to be off their guard. A quick squeeze here and there, resulting in sharp runups, would give the list an appearance of strength, facilitating distribution in the leaders.

The notebook of one successful trader contains the names of specialties such as Sears-Roebuck, International Harvester, Johns Manville, Westinghouse, Texas Corporation, Lorillard and Gillette. Most of these equities have been noted here recently, and his agreement strongly suggests their purchase on recessions.

The fact that trading opinion favors early irregularity, followed by a corrective movement, does not necessarily mean that there will be nothing more on the upside. More logically it means that equity values, adjusted from abnormally low levels, will wait on the fall business performance.

Odds and Ends

Gillette 5s of 1940, which were recommended here within one point of the low, now show a profit of nearly 20 points. Reliable informants say there are developments contemplated within the company which make a switch from the bonds to the common stock seem logical.

A bit of gossip heard in usually informed State Street circles seems worth the repeating. It concerns the still drooping real estate values in large cities. The big people behind this market are expected to give it their attention next, beginning with New York City.

There are many observers in the financial district who feel the United Cigar Stores receivership will prove to be a smart move. As they see it, the company faced an insurmountable barrier to profits in the shape of high rentals.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

STRONG support appeared on sinking spells in Wall St. today. The outstanding bright spot was the coppers, which were aided by an advance in price for the domestic metal. Rails were aided by reports that plans are being made for organizing a railroad equipment finance corporation, in which the R. F. C. and some of the equipment manufacturers would have a joint interest.

Utilities Groomed For New Financing

Most actively discussed topic in connection with the striking buoyancy of utility shares had to do with rumored plans for a market demonstration in their behalf and its possible effect in facilitating considerable new power and light financing this Fall. The general expectation seemed to be that many enterprises in the industry will enter the capital market for refunding existing bank loans and maturing short term indebtedness providing the necessary "preliminary buildup" can be accomplished. The fact that several organizations have been able to wipe out current bank debts without additional borrowing is said to have some favorable psychological reaction.

Colgate-Palm Olive Pressure Lifted

Oil Export Value Rises 35c Barrel

Attention was drawn to the improved position of the oil export market and to the remarkable price rise in crude products by official government statistics just issued. United States shipments of crude to foreign countries during July showed a value equal to more than 35 cents a barrel, greater than for the same month last year, notwithstanding a 14 per cent decrease in quantity. Gasoline and other light products, however, failed to show a comparative improvement, shipments being 47 per cent less in volume and 41 per cent smaller in value.

Atchison Still Europe's "Rail"

Despite its tremendous market appreciation, Atchison common continues to be Europe's favorite railroad stock, houses doing a large foreign commission business say. Much of the stock is being taken for Holland and Switzerland, where it formerly had a large investment following. Bullish feeling of the issue has been increased by the July operating results now at hand. These showed net up nearly five times above June but comparison with a year ago disclosed a decrease in net of 61 per cent contrasted with the June loss of 63 per cent from the like 1931 month.

Department Store Stocks Hold Gains

Private advices that department stores in the principal cities are now experiencing a seasonal pickup in sales partly explains the late wide recoveries in several kindred stocks. Several have rallied 100 per cent or more from their early July lows and have held their gains impressively. It is reported the improvement in Macy's business justifies an upward revision in estimated net this year from the original figures calculated on the reduction in the showing for the first six months. For 1931 the company reported net equal to $3.62 a share.

Closing Is Mixed in London Market

London, Aug. 30 (AP)—Proposed Treasury conversion plan caused another advance in gilt edge securities on the stock exchange. Profit taking caused an irregular closing. Paris closed steady. Berlin closing was slightly easier.

SPECTATOR Says:

Speculative sentiment is leaning more to the side of reaction today and enthusiasm for the buying side is waning, if only temporarily. The constant churning of the main body of stocks without any appreciable progress is largely the reason, plus the realization of the extent of the advance in the last six weeks with business still showing only promises.

Commodities

Commodities, however, continue to rise and stocks still meet buyers on only slight setbacks. All in all, a little watching in here would do little harm.

It's a safe bet that most of the people who are now speculating in commodities would have difficulty in telling one from another. But it really doesn't matter when it comes to a showdown as long as you can buy a commodity at one price and sell it at a higher one. It ends up in money.

Here and There

General Electric is understood to have a big amount of stock for sale on the specialists' books. Big interests in General Motors are said to be committed to higher prices for the stock. It's going to take a lot of money to reach the reported objective above 20.

All kinds of prices are heard for U. S. Steel. One story is that the stock will be near par before the common shows even a nickel in earnings.

NINTH DIVIDEND IS DECLARED ON HEARST STOCK

San Francisco, Aug. 30—The ninth consecutive quarterly cash dividend of 1¾ per cent, or at the rate of 7 per cent annually, was voted yesterday by the board of directors of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., on the class "A" 7 per cent cumulative participating preferred shares.

The board of directors also voted the regular quarterly dividend of 43¾ cents per share on the common stock. Both the preferred and common dividends are payable September 15 to shareholders of record September 1.

AIDS MANY COMMUNITIES

This large dividend distribution will contribute added buying power to hundreds of communities throughout the United States and aid in the movement for the revival of prosperity and public confidence.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., has been one of the few notable corporations in America, during the last two years, that has consistently maintained a record of uninterrupted quarterly cash dividends paid out of current earnings.

OVER 35,000 INVESTORS

In organizing this $129,000,000 corporation, Mr. Hearst placed back of it the earning power of 12 of his greatest profit-making properties to insure a steady and uninterrupted flow of dividends. This impressive group includes:

The American Weekly Magazine, New York Evening Journal, San Francisco Examiner, Chicago Evening American, Los Angeles Examiner, Detroit Times, Oakland Post Enquirer, Los Angeles Herald-Express, Seattle Post Intelligencer, San Francisco Call-Bulletin, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and American Newsprint Company.

More than 35,000 investors are now enrolled upon the books of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc.

STOCKS MIXED IN BOSTON

Mixed trend prevailed in late trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today with changes ranging from fractions to 2 or more points. Strength of the copper shares on the New York Exchange was reflected in a gain of over a point for Anaconda which carried the issue to a new high for the year.

Edison Electric was over 2 points above its previous closing price. American Telephone after selling down over a point in the forenoon rallied to show but a fractional loss from last night's close. General Electric gained fractionally.

Rail shares were mixed, with New Haven showing a fractional gain while Old Colony advanced over a point. Boston & Albany sold down a point and Atchison eased slightly. United Fruit was strong and gained well over a point. United Shoe and American Woolen preferred were fractionally higher.

REGULATION OF LABOR NEEDED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

New York, Aug. 30—The great merit in the agenda suggested by the Advertising Club of New York and by organized labor for the October conference in New York on restoration of prosperity lies in the emphasis that mere manipulation of speculative markets is not enough.

Calvin B. Hoover, economist of Duke University at Durham, North Carolina, in a message to this column, not only stressed the limitation on mere palliatives, but further indicated that America was unlikely to go back to the old order of 1929. He thinks that economic security requires greater governmental supervision and co-ordination of business activities.

In giving his conception of a fundamental remedy, Mr. Hoover added:

"I am constantly growing more skeptical of the permanent value of attempts to restore purchasing power by means of credit expansion alone. It is doubtful whether we are going to be able to satisfactorily restore purchasing power without authoritative supervision of wages, hours of labor, dividend policies of corporations and commodity prices. This would involve not only the supervision of credit expansion, but would amount to a fundamental reconstruction of our mechanism of production and distribution. Certainly I see no immediate prospect of such reconstruction."

DISAGREEMENT OVER COTTON

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—Silence today surrounded the $50,000,000 which Jesse H. Jones, a director of the Reconstruction Corporation, last night announced had been made available to keep Government controlled cotton off the market until 1933.

Farm Board officials declined to discuss the proposed loan in any way but it was strongly indicated there that the board and the Reconstruction Corporation were not in full agreement concerning the loan.

The American Cotton Co-operative Association and the Cotton Stabilization Corporation requested the loan with Farm Board approval, but under different terms from those which the Reconstruction Corporation specified in giving its approval.

Only Saturday the Farm Board said in a letter to Governor Murray of Oklahoma that there had been no change in its policy to dispose of 650,000 bales of cotton during the current year. Governor Murray had suggested that by withholding the stabilization supplies prices would be increased.

Jones announced the allotment of the loan in a radio address.

BRISK SELLING SEEN AT CLOSE IN WALL ST.

New York, Aug. 30—Price changes showed mixed trends during most of today's Wall St. trading. The market again acted tired. Although assortment of coppers, rubbers, motors and oils moved forward, most of the traditional leaders were logy.

Brisk selling appeared in the last few minutes, and some pivotal shares ran off sharply.

A rather pronounced decline in some of the commodities, notably cotton, in the early trading, was not particularly disturbing to the share market, but bullish efforts failed to attract an important following, and trading was quieter.

SOME FRESH HIGHS.

Goodyear, reflecting the sharp upturn in rubber yesterday, advanced about 4 points to a new high for the year, and other issues up 1 to around 2 points to new peak levels since 1931 included Firestone, U. S. Rubber, Chrysler, American Woolen, National Cash Register, Anaconda Copper, Kennecott, Noranda, Granby, and Calumet and Arizona.

Similar advances appeared in such issues as Nash, Bendix, Electric Autolite, Borg Warner, United Fruit, Westinghouse, Standards of N. J. and California, and Atlantic Refining. Losses of a point or two in the first few minutes were largely regained, but by early afternoon, Union Pacific, Case, American Can and International Harvester were down about a point, and American Telephone and U. S. Steel were off fractionally.

Commission house advices indicated a feeling that the approach of the Labor Day holiday week-end might prompt considerable profit-taking, and that evidently tended to make traders cautious. Another factor was the continued indifferent performance of bonds, which have been lagging for several sessions.

In both stocks and bonds, the railroad issues appear to have been adversely affected by the July operating income statements.

RAILS' SHOWING POOR

Tabulation of the first 62 reports for July shows that gross was off about 36½ per cent from last year, while June had been off 33 per cent. Nevertheless, friends of the carrier issues felt that the August reports would be somewhat more favorable, and hoped for marked improvement in the later months of the year.

In connection with the buying of the motor and accessory stocks, some automobile concerns have reported a little pickup in sales in August from the extremely low levels of July. Most Wall Street observers, however, have not expected much of a revival in the motor industry before October, although the Ford plants are slated to resume September 6.

Coppers were helped by a slight firming of the domestic metal price, up about half a cent in a fortnight.

Wool was a strong spot in the commodities, wool top futures rising about 5 cents a pound, the sharpest advance since trading was started in New York in May of last year.

Pennsy's. Quarter Net 27 Cts Share

Report of Pennsylvania Railroad Co., filed with New York State Public Service Commission, for the quarter ended June 30, 1932, shows surplus of $3,620,766 after taxes and charges, equal to 27 cents a share (par $50) on the 13,162,810 shares, against surplus in the second quarter of 1931 of $5,607,258 (revised), equal to 42 cents a share on 13,160,257 shares.

For the six months ended June 30, 1932, surplus was $5,528,599, equal to 42 cents a share on the 13,162,810 shares, against $8,155,498, or 62 cents a share on 13,160,257 shares in the first half of 1931.

More Passengers in Airplane Travel

Traffic reports indicate Pan American Airways carried about 27,000 passengers the first six months this year, against 21,312, corresponding period of 1931. Largest increase was on the Cristobal-Buenos Aires route, at 113 per cent, partly due to opening of a passenger service at first of the year between Santiago, Buenos Aires and Montevideo. It transported 858 passengers the first half of this year. The east coast route was next in percentage gain, with 75 per cent.

Grains Are Easier in Chicago Market

Wheat finished 1⅛ to 1¼c lower, corn ⅜ to ¾c down, oats ¼ to ½c off and rye ¾ to 1⅛c lower.

Furnace Is Banked

Youngstown, O., Aug. 30—Republic Steel Corp. has banked a blast furnace at its Haselton plant, following a decline in requirement of the nearby steel works.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

Ruth St. Denis says she discovered two aged nautch dancers in India who dance "entirely with the eyebrows."

Nice idea. A lotta women who insist on going to dancenes in this country should be encouraged to dance with their eyebrows.

Then they could have a good time.

* * *

Woo the fickle hot pellol.

(Sermon)

"The dangerous age is middle age, when men and women are likely to become too prudent."—Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Sizzler, 1901—
"You ain't mad, am I?"

* * *

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—What would you suggest as fitting to have engraved on the inner side of a wedding ring, besides the date? Frantic.

Ans.—"Finders keepers."
Aunt (Helping Hand) Bella.

Says Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, "Clucks who complain they can't live within their income will soon learn that it is harder living without it."

Milestones on the path to something or other—

LOS ANGELES—Los Angeles Park Commission has ruled that it is unlawful to sell poetry in a public park.

* * *

When Hap O'Connor hasn't anything else to do he gets on the phone and gives his friends race-track tips. Yesterday he spent the morning telling them to bet Perspiration to show.

AUTO SUGGESTION

I met a little lady.
I took her out to dine,
Which may have been polite of me,
But very asinine.
I don't know much about her,
But I have a little hunch
She must be fond of autos from
The truck she ate for lunch.
—Garth Bentley.

Politicians won't retire
While there's a hall that they can hire.

(News Item—Los Angeles Paper)
"Many visitors to the Temple were disappointed when the evangelist failed to appear in his cream-colored sombrero, red shirt trimmed with green horseshoes, riding breeches of pale yellow and black boots with silver spurs. Kellogg's fantastic entry with his 'yi-yi-yippity-yi' as he pranced down the ramp to the rostrum, his hips decorated with pearl-handled six-shooters has proven something unusual as a prelude to a sermon, and he has attracted hundreds to see and hear."

* * *

"There are two kinds of educators," snarls the Rt. Rev. Wiley. "Those who think schools should develop character and those who think they should prepare students for life."

* * *

BROADCASTING BRIEFS

World to Hear About Sun's Behavior

By N. F. T.

Tomorrow is awaited eagerly indeed among astronomers and radio men. For months they have rehearsed roles they will assume in support of "Old Sol," who heads the cast in his picturesque super-spectacle, The Solar Eclipse. What a Show!

SIGHT AND SOUND

Look and listen along toward late afternoon, for then a curtain of clouds will rise to reveal the heavenly setting. Those not situated to see what takes place, may tune in and be told about it all.

• • •

Below is set forth a complete schedule of radio activity in connection with this rare phenomenon. Use it as a table from which to select your eclipse description tomorrow.

Broadcasts For Eclipse Day

3:15, WNAC, description from Conway, N. H., by James Stokley, associate director of astronomy, Franklin Institute, Philadelphia.

4:15, WBZ, description from Magog, Quebec, by Dr. A. S. Eve of McGill University.

4:20, WNAC, second broadcast by Dr. Stokley.

5:15, WAAB, third broadcast by Dr. Stokley.

9:30, WEEI, discussion by Robert Shippee and Lieut. G. R. Johnson, aviators, who will have flown in the path of the totality.

LISTENERS' LAMENT

Glistening sun, from here afar
Oft' I've wondered what you are.
Now you plan to slide from sight
And fade away in broad daylight
Must your gleam an eclipse mar?
I'd rather it were some radio star!

—Ray D. O'Scribe.

COMEBACK CALL

An exceptionally popular program created in Boston was that "Cap'n and Widder" series, written by Charlie (WEEI) Burton. It hasn't been on the air for some time, but is due to return tonight between 6:40 and 7 o'clock. Subsequent bits are also slated for Thursday and Saturday evenings at the same time. Thus it looks as though said Charlie Burton has set out to re-establish the former wide patronage attending his "mike" characters hereabouts. Bob and Margaret Burlen are starred.

• • •

Elizabeth Travis Behnke, piano soloist at Yankee Network studios, undertakes to render the entire Beethoven "Moonlight Sonata" during her "Piano Moods" period tonight (WAAB) at 7:30.

Advance praise is plentiful in connection with a more or less bloody war drama waiting on our dials (WBZ) tonight from 8 to 8:30. They call it "Doom" and declare it has what most radio drama has not. Let's hope so.

LOCAL LATHER

All America hears the "Junior World Series" via NBC network facilities tomorrow afternoon, when Charlie O'Connor and George Hicks hold forth to describe the play from Manchester, N. H. Games come over WEEI at 2 o'clock. Boston's petite Betty Traske has annexed an RKO contract for herself in New York, the result of coming out up front during Paul Whiteman auditions there. Application to the Federal Radio Commission for the removal of WLEY from Lexington over Lowell way, has been indefinitely dismissed. Ruth Chilton half plans trying "I don't wanna' play in your yard" for her future theme tune. She isn't quite sure whether it will score as for example Kate Smith's moon coming over the mountain song or that soulful "Shine on Harvest Moon," exploited by Ruth Etting. By jingo, it might at that—eh? Big doings on Thursday night at Springfield, with WMAS airing its maiden program. Wonder if Ed. Wynn will make any reference to his Sept. 3 Hub theatre opening while he's playing "Chief again" tonight opposite Graham? There's almost too much organ music abroad lately—eh? Oh well, everyone can't be suited. At least they haven't been yet. Lew Conrad talked some things over with his former Boston hotel bosses yesterday afternoon. Patricia (WBZ) Henry assembled her "Southern Rebels" music men on the vacant Lyric theatre stage this morning. RKO rahjahs are figuring on them for possible fall footlight appearances. Rumor rises to insist that "Grin and Bear It" went off WBZ today. Recent retrenchment around town has hit studio staff orchestras smack in the brass section, which isn't always where they can take it.

On the Air

Radio's funny men will continue to be the chief attraction this fall. That is if sponsors continue to finance the funny men and the funny men continue to finance the fellers who write the comedy for them.

Richard Gordon, who plays Sherlock Holmes for the coffee sponsor, has been taking parts as a master crook and a murderer on the Magic Carpet hour. Which proves to you that even a detective will turn thief and killer for money.

John Shepard, boss of WNAC-WAAB, went to the expense of having a survey made of pulling power of local stations, and learned that WBZ is the biggest dial magnet between 7 and 10 p. m. But he was consoled inasmuch as WNAC led them all for an all-day average.

Virginia (NBCinger) Rea believes in telepathy. "Thoughts are frequently conveyed without words," she says. "For example, when I enter a room full of women and the conversation instantly ceases, I know precisely about whom they've been talking."

A Florida fruit grower has named a watermelon after Buddy Rogers, says NBC . . . All wet and seedy?

Music teachers declare wind instruments are the best to hear on the air. In radio circles speakers are called wind instruments which should cause the music teachers to guess again.

"Did you see the twins?" asks Julia Sanderson. "Yep," says Frank Crumit. "The boy is the picture of his father and the girl is the talkie of her mother."

Gossip About People You Know

MEETS HIS FAMILY THEN

"Tom" Ray, of Governor Ely's secretarial force, holds one day each week open for getting acquainted with his family. That's Sunday. It's about the only chance he has to see his two-year-old as he usually does not get home until late in the evening.

NEXT DOOR TO KNOCKERS

The meeting of New England Democratic state chairmen at the Parker House, it developed, took place next door to the Knockers Club, a G. O. P. luncheon stronghold. The walls of this room fairly groan with pictures of the great and near great of the Republican persuasion—Presidents Coolidge and Harding, Senator Lodge, etc., etc.

WALSH TAKES TUMBLE

In leaving the Democratic meeting, Senator Walsh came within an inch of getting a bad fall. He had forgotten that there was a step down into the corridor.

"And there was nothing served but water," the senator remarked as he regained his balance.

LYONS HEADQUARTERS

Dr. Joseph V. Lyons, candidate for sheriff of Suffolk County, has opened headquarters for the East Boston district at 146 Meridian st.

KELIHER RECEPTION

South Bostonites are to tender Sheriff John A. Keliher, candidate for re-election, a reception in the Municipal building in Broadway, Sunday evening, September 11.

BURKE IN RACE

Thomas F. Burke of 14 Knowlton st., South Boston, is a candidate for the Democratic state committee in the district comprising Wards 6 and 7, South Boston, and Ward 8, Roxbury. He is a graduate of South Boston High School and Northeastern Law School.

PRENDERGAST RALLIES

Representative William P. Prendergast, candidate for re-election in the Charlestown district, will hold a rally at 12 St. Martin st., Thursday evening; 421 Main st., Friday evening, and in the home of City Councillor Thomas H. Green, 117 Baldwin st., Sunday evening.

PIEMONTE OPENS HEADQUARTERS

Gabriel Francis Piemonte, Democratic candidate for Representative in Ward 3, North End, will officially open his campaign headquarters today, at 470 Commercial st.

Piemonte's candidacy has been endorsed by the North End Improvement Association, Foster Associates of North End, and the Syrian American Naturalization Association of the South End.

Welfare Swindlers Must Be Made to Disgorge

The public welfare racket in the city of Boston has produced a corps of cheap, picayune chiselers beside whom the common panhandler is a paragon of virtue.

In this public welfare racket, we have seen charity funds demanded and accepted by chiselers who have fat bank accounts, who own their own homes, who are drawing substantial pensions from their government in one form or another. Dead persons are listed, vacant lots, garages, gasoline stations, empty houses are given as addresses by the grafters.

We have seen the sleek-haired son drive up to City Hall in his fancy roadster and collect charity payments in the name of his mother.

We have seen one fellow finance his honeymoon trip to Europe out of public charity collections. (His wife will be happy, indeed, to be reminded in the future of this deceitful beginning of their married life.)

We have seen charity payments accepted by lazy louts whose children, and even the wife, were profitably and regularly employed, producing on Saturday night pay envelopes adequate to maintain the average household in comfort.

There have been so many methods of petty graft exposed that the good people of Boston are sick and disgusted at the contemptible abuse of the sweet virtue of charity.

Well, the police are exposing it, with the active co-operation of Mayor Curley, the Boston Finance Commission is investigating, the Mayor has undertaken an independent survey of the evils, and the Corporation Counsel is compelling scores of these little grafters to repay to the city the funds they have received by their misrepresentations of their conditions in life.

The Welfare Board, Simon Hecht, William Taylor and its other members, serving the public without compensation, all men whose excellent reputation is unchallenged, have been made the goats by cheap liars and fakers who have taken advantage of the public need and the public generosity to fatten their lazy lives.

They have been made the goats by a few petty politicians who have placed their constituents on the charity rolls in order to fatten their own political standing in their districts.

As a matter of fact, the ones who have been made the goats to the greatest degree are the fine people of Boston who have paid their taxes to the City Treasury with one hand while contributing with the other to the numerous charity, relief and unemployment drives.

Thousands of these good people have donated funds which they could have put to good use in their own homes and other thousands have donated wages at actual sacrifice to themselves.

There is no virtue greater than the charity of these fine, honest people.

Their generosity is entitled to protection. Our unfortunate people actually in need of aid deserve to be freed from the suspicion which has been placed upon all of them by the petty and mean grafters who have been receiving aid under false pretenses. The petty and the mean must be compelled to disgorge their ill-gotten funds in order that gracious charity may not be held in contempt. Jail terms must be given wherever deliberate swindling and fraud can be proved.

The Boston Evening American can speak with authority and frankness in this matter because it was the Boston Evening American which exposed this thievery to the good people of Boston.

Women Won't Forget

Miss Mary Ward, the Democratic National Committeewoman, aptly says that while men may be misled by political propaganda, superficial and unimportant, the woman in the home will not forget the hardship of the past four years.

The man of the house could derive some satisfaction from the Pollyanna statements from Washington. But she knew that statements and statistics were not putting food on the table or shoes on the baby.

Just Folks

The Change

A little less fashion our bodies adorning,
A little less leisure, a little less madness,
A little less wild life we fancied was gladness,
A little less boasting, a little less fretting,
And it may be that back to our senses we're getting.

Less money to do with, but what does it matter?
A little less roaming, a little less gaining,
A little more thought to our young people's training,
A little less seeking rewards without working.

There's something we've lost, but we'll get on without it.
A little more wisdom, a little more bravery,
A little more thought for receipts and expenses,
And perhaps we are all getting back to our senses.

"Take 'Em Off, We Know You"

Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, whose last visit to this country was followed by the Hoover war debt moratorium, is again in the United States on a mysterious mission.

He sailed from England secretly; he tried to mask his identity under the pseudonym of "Prof. Clarence Skinner"; he tried to hide away on the Maine coast. He has been in communication with the House of Morgan, fiscal agents of the British Empire, with international bankers and with representatives of the Government at Washington.

Why all the mystery about his visit? Why does he come in disguise to our shores? Is he to arrange for an extension of the Hoover moratorium? Is he here to pave the way for debt cancellation AFTER the November elections?

Or is he here to arrange for contributions to the Hoover campaign chest?

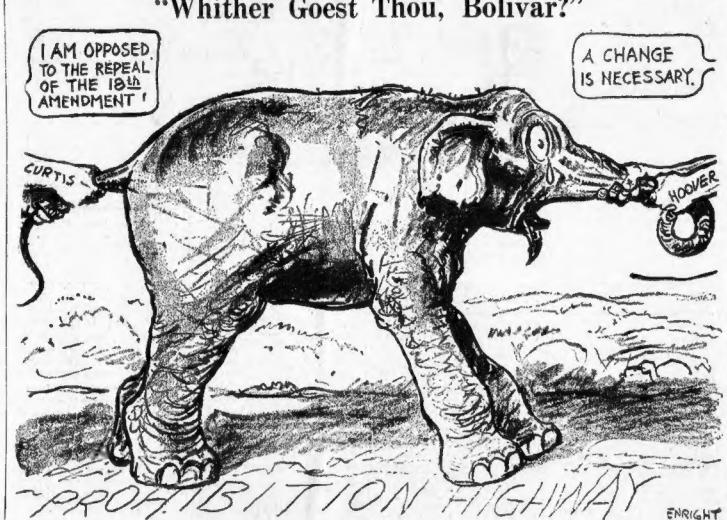

Europe and the international bankers want Hoover re-elected President.

Of course, they have no selfish motive! Oh, my, no!

All European nations ask is the cancellation of their JUST debts to the United States Treasury. The international bankers seek the same thing to make easier the collection of the private loans foreign governments owe them.

Take 'em off, "Professor Skinner," we know you!

"Whither Goest Thou, Bolivar?"

Bolivar himself would like to be able to answer that very question.

One G. O. P. Standard bearer, Hoover by name, forced the Party to take a WET-DRY-MIDDLE OF THE ROAD Stand on the Prohibition issue and the other Standard bearer, Curtis by name, definitely announced that the bone dry path was the Chosen Path for him.

Pity poor Bolivar! He'd like to get somewhere. But how can he with the rival Mahouts trying to pull him BOTH WAYS AT ONCE?

O. O. McIntyre -:- New York Day by Day

Rules for Beggars

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—I have formulated a set of rules for street begging which, such as they are, I pass along for what they are worth. No one these days can be indifferent. I try to give at least a small coin, always, to the blind, the badly crippled and the very aged.

For able-bodied who seek alms, I have tickets providing either a bed or a night's lodging. Such types I do not give money. The most impertinent, and likely the least deserving, are mendicants who stick their heads in automobile windows at traffic stops in a scrambling clutch.

A charity worker informs me they are 100 per cent drifters, who spend their rewards for cheap booze and depend upon charities for food, lodging and clothes. Thousands of shiftless find living easier these days and thus intensify the burden of the deserving.

The professional moocher knows many tricks of his unworthy calling. A young man with a girl is considered an excellent target. Beggars rely on the embarrassment of youth to win their appeals. The "dummy chucker" pounces on a piece of planned bread in the gutter to excite a shower of change.

Crying is one of the certain clinchers, but it is rare; it is not the faked effort of the expert. Lacking a nickel for fare to some imaginary suburb is another sure fire. Finally, the best way to help is to lump as much as possible and turn over to a worthy charity.

The futility of writing frequently assails every member of the craft. Someone once dismally expressed it: "A pen is but a feather lifted on the wind." A disconsolate scrivener at breakfast today was stressing the theme. The finest writing, he averred, invariably is a pose, an appeal to maudlin instincts. The most delicious moment he ever experienced was when, taunted in a Liverpool groggery, he felled a giant sailor and stamped out his teeth. "Yet," he complained, "I seek to thrill my customers with murmured nothings of nobodies on moonlight decks of yachts. I'm a colossal faker."

* * *

Many scholars declare Shakespeare must have felt the same way about his calling. In the last bit of writing he ever did, he said:

My project fails,
Which was to please—
My ending is despair.

If I were asked to point out the greatest weakness of all writers, it would be their perpetual efforts at impersonations, as the gentlemen at breakfast said. We fly into affectations of pugnacity in print, when we really don't give a hoot. Or we assume a role of smart-aleckry or, perhaps, an imitation of Mr. Shaw.

Not so far back in the hollow of time, Queen Marie was constantly in the headlines and the news-reel shots. Then, in the manner of snapping off an electric light—oblivion. An authentic biography is reputed knocking around magazine shops, with no takers. No one knows why, but perhaps Charles Hanson Towne's reason for the eclipse of another headliner fits. He said: "Too many people do things these days."

Charlie Towne, widely publicized as Manhattan's most confirmed celibate, is reported to have settled down to a country gentleman's life, dividing time between a carat-like farm in Connecticut and a bachelor flat in town. Recently he actually has been dining at home. For a stretch of 15 years, he was a dinner guest, without a single night's exception, at some home, club or cafe.

Mr. Montagu Norman's Secret Diplomacy

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

THE mysterious visit to this country of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, under the assumed name of Professor Clarence Skinner, emphasizes the character of secret diplomacy in international finance.

The vital questions of the workaday world, on which the opportunity to work and live well of tens of millions of workers hinges, are customarily discussed behind closed corridors by eminent personalities, who are chosen by other than democratic methods.

As long as the oligarchic rule by bankers worked successfully, it could perhaps be defended, even though it failed to jibe with the theory of government by a free people. But now that such extra-legal government has broken down and has plunged the world into three years of abysmal economic chaos, it is in order to ask whether free peoples are to be FOREVER ENCHAINED BY THE WHISPERINGS OF FINANCIERS.

EVEN technical discussions of central banking problems—such as discount rates and gold movements—have a greater bearing on the welfare of ordinary people than the open debates of parliamentarians, yet undemocratic traditions of secrecy and privacy habitually prevent the admission of the sunlight of publicity to the deliberations of officers of central banks.

In adhering to such Old World customs, which are based on a DISTRUST of the people, officers of the Federal Reserve System have for years run counter to the spirit, if not to the letter, of the Federal Reserve Act.

In doing so they have committed the American people to co-operative policies of immense historic importance.

No one doubts the exchange of opinions on purely banking questions by officers of central banks, which since the war have had a new rapprochement, can become a civilizing force, yet the destiny of peoples should not be BARTERED away without public discussion and information.

The practical effect of secrecy is to put the inner circle and their friends in a position of SPECIAL PRIVILEGE, enabling the select group of the initiated TO PROFIT GREATLY from their inside information in the world markets.

THE present mission of Montagu Norman is especially questioned, because it apparently has QUASI-POLITICAL objectives.

The term of the one year Hoover Moratorium has expired, and thus far the debtor countries, of which Montagu Norman's is the most important, have taken NO STEPS TO RESUME MEETING THEIR OBLIGATIONS. In fact, THE CURRENT BRITISH BUDGET MAKES NO PROVISION FOR DEBT PAYMENTS.

In the circumstances, Montagu Norman's use of the pseudonym and his effort to secrete himself in a small Maine town give the impression of a Minister Extraordinary sneaking into a friendly country to carry on FURTIVELY negotiations which his country is not yet ready to carry on openly.

According to reports from Washington, the Governor of the Bank of England also is prepared to discuss international central banking co-operation which will fit in with the "American managed recovery" which has been launched by the international bankers to assure the re-election of President Hoover.

From a purely domestic standpoint, the postponement by the Administration of remedial measures until shortly before the election might well be questioned. Certainly, from an international standpoint, it would be an intrusion for a foreign financial leader to enter into any discussions having to do with the forthcoming election.

AS FOR the international debts, the consistent widespread opposition to cancellation has regarded the Hoover Moratorium from the outset as a mere preludo to a campaign for ultimate cancellation.

"Cancellation," of course, is a euphemism of the attempted plot to transfer the cost of the war to the backs of American taxpayers.

The discussion on this vital question of debts must be made by Congress as the elected representatives of the American people. Accordingly, if Montagu Norman has any data or thoughts on this subject, let him issue a public statement—openly and honorably.

This paramount issue should not be settled in confidential chats between Montagu Norman and Junius S. Morgan, partner of the house of Morgan, fiscal agents for the British Treasury. Apparently the impression prevails abroad that the cancellationists can succeed better with a Republican Congress and a Republican President, and therefore foreigners are tempted to pull wires to prevent the election of Governor Roosevelt and a Democratic Congress, which are committed to collection of the debts of the Allies to the United States Treasury.

OFFICIALLY, Montagu Norman, if he were disposed to talk to the press, would probably diplomatically deny that his visit has any public significance, but the record shows that the Hoover Moratorium was immediately announced after one of his former mysterious journeys to these shores.

Probably Montagu Norman came over to get the real low down on American sentiment concerning debts. He probably came over also to stress his own propaganda.

If he came for information concerning the American viewpoint, he would have to visit Kansas, North Dakota, California, Texas and Ohio, as well as other representative American commonwealths. He could not hope to feel the pulse of the American people merely by conversing with his agents in Wall Street or his friends in Washington.

In the circumstances, it would make for international good will if Montagu Norman would depart from his cynical disregard of public opinion and issue a statement indicating precisely what he is after this time.
